MAURY HIGH SCHOOL
NORFOLK, VIRGINIA

60 Years of Service

Although Maury has been alive for sixty years, the initial ambitions, hopes, and dreams of students remain much as they were in the year Maury graduated her first class. However, Maury has undergone a variety of changes in her lifetime. She has survived two major world wars, massive resistance, total school integration, and busing. In addition, Maury has experienced numerous internal changes to her physical plant, and in the attitudes and actions of her student body. Today she stands on the threshold of another major change, modular scheduling, and if her past is any indication of her future, she will meet this challenge with dignity.

Long shirts, short skirts, long hair, short hair — Though styles have changed many times since Maury's beginning, the passerby is still impressed by the eager faces and enthusiastic spirit of the students who throng her steps and gather on her campus.

The many moods of Maury's student body range from pensive to exuberant. Grins, frowns, smirks, but mostly smiles make up the many-sided personality of the Maury student.

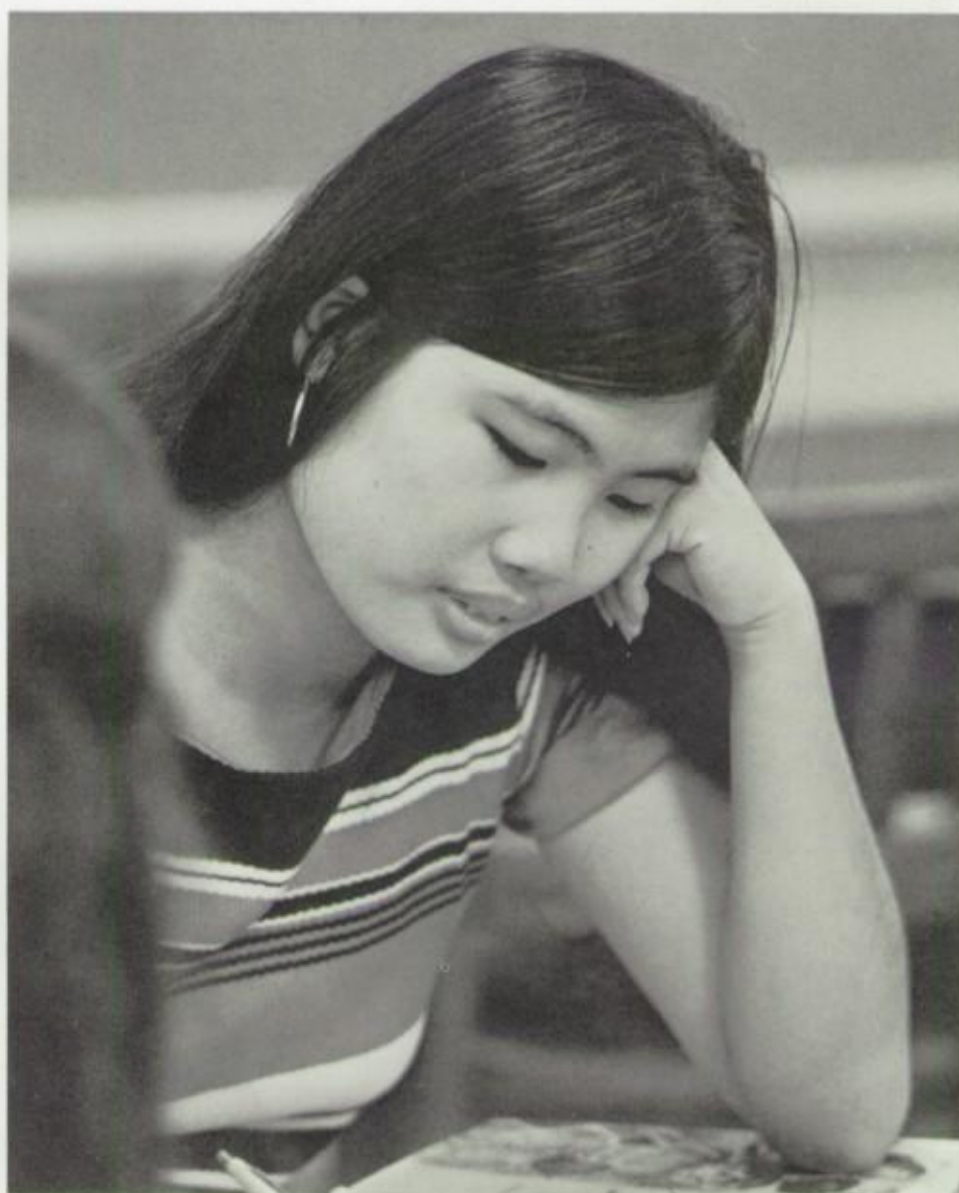

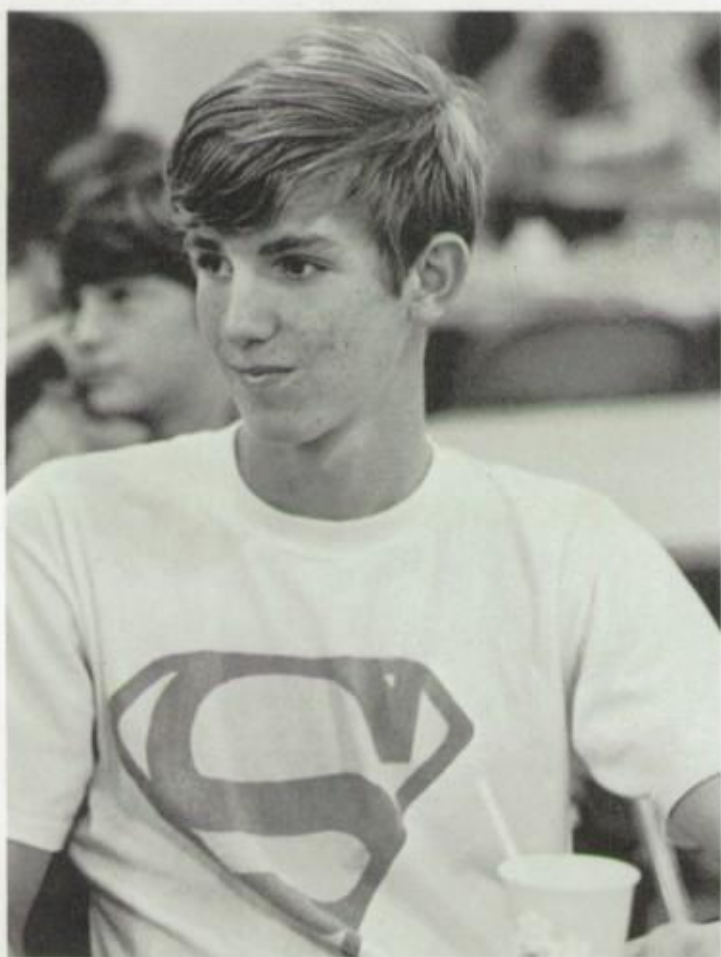

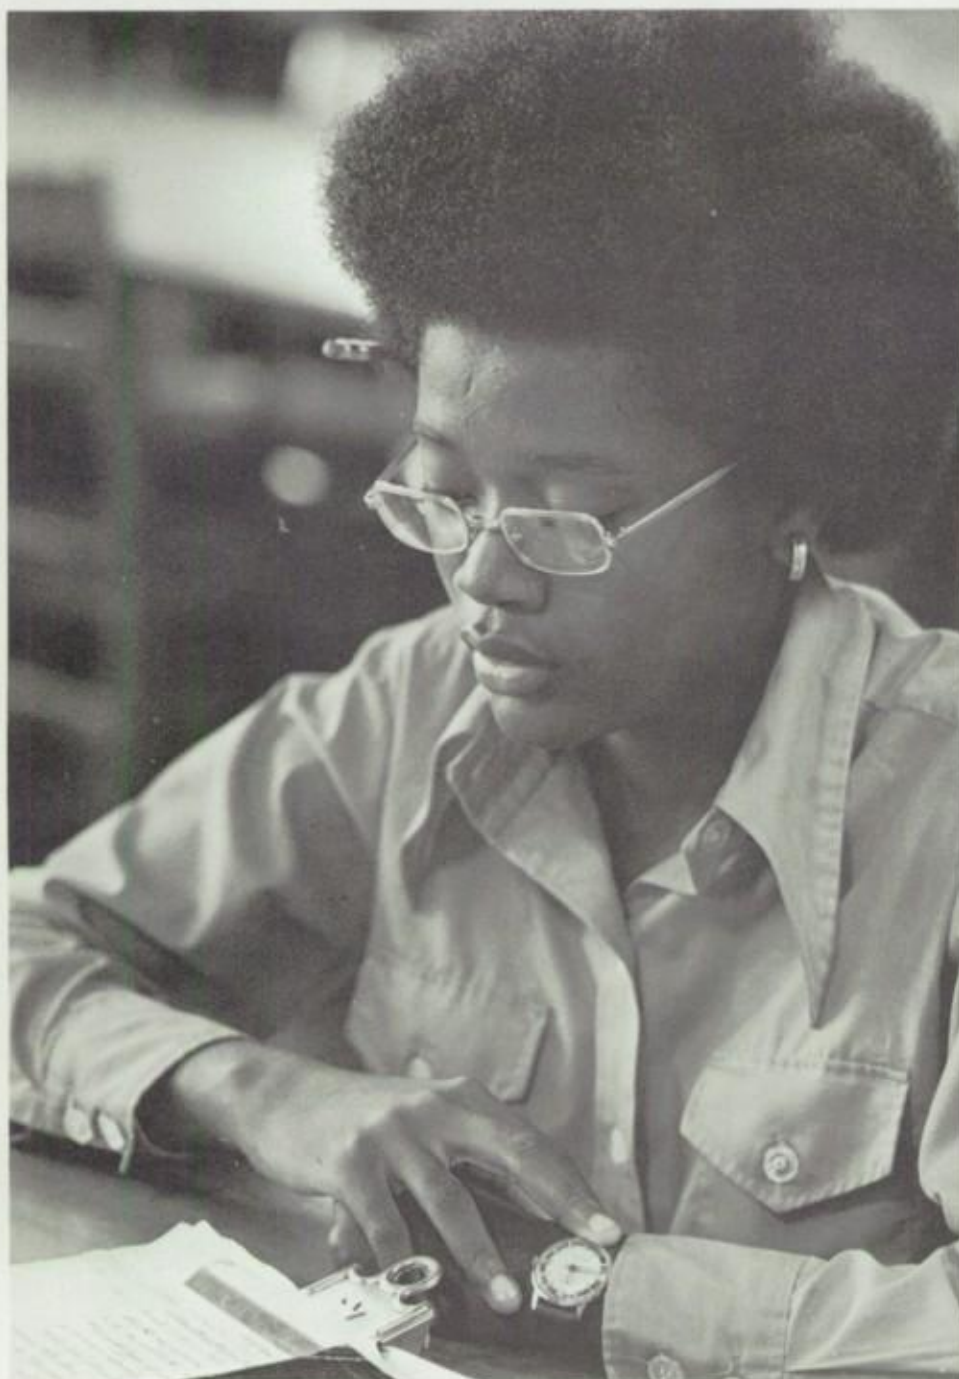

The habitat of the Maury student may be the library, the study hall, the front steps, or a thousand other strange and interesting places.

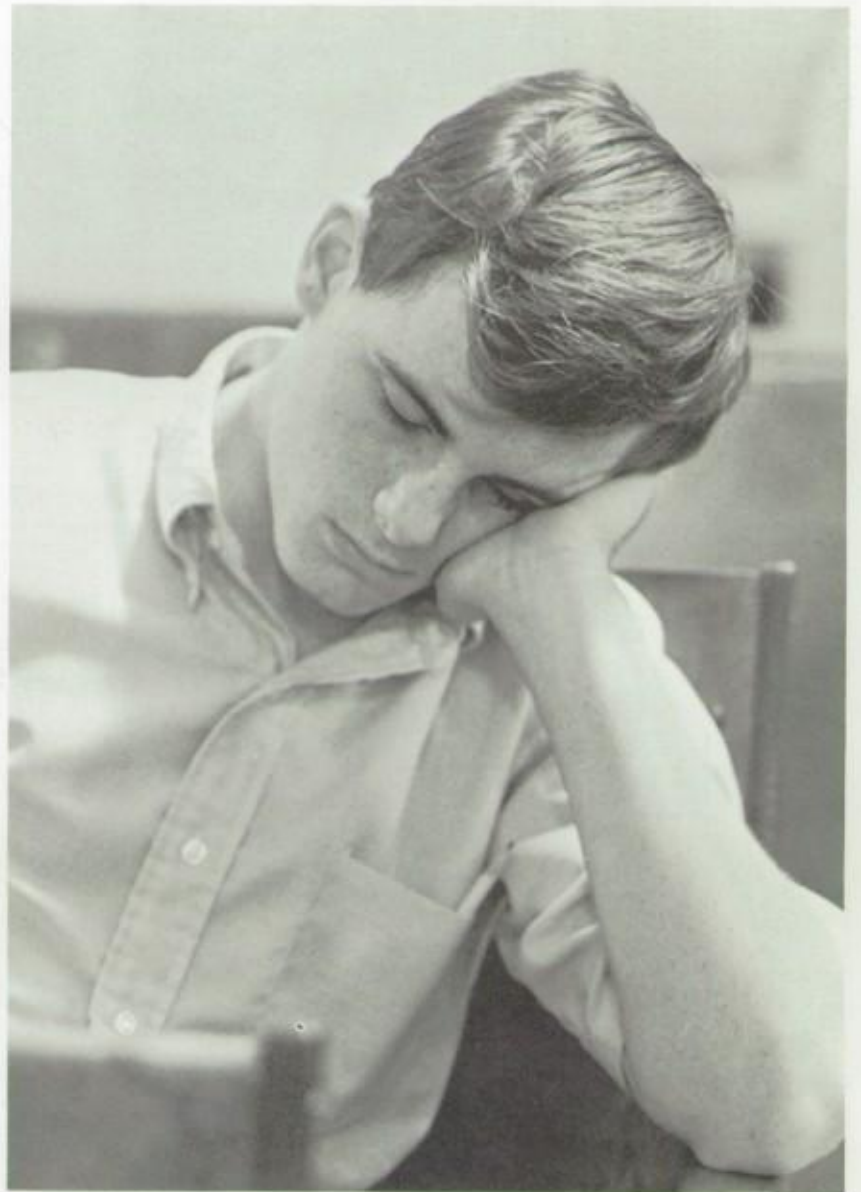

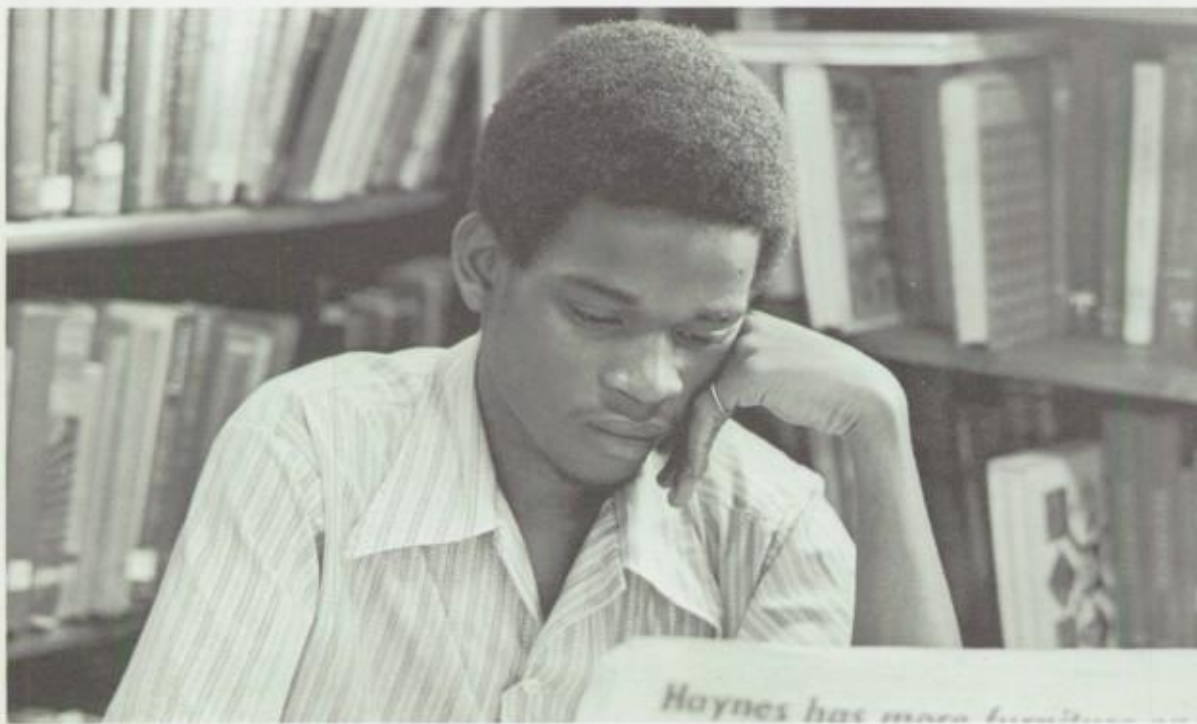

Some of the most interesting people in the world live and work at Maury. Even Superman goes to Maury. He knows that here he will find good people and good times. For sixty years now, Maury students have been saying of this unique institution, "It's a good place to live but I wouldn't want to visit."

It's a mad, mad world when Maury teachers and students meet. A glance at these pages will reveal the antics and anxieties of at least a decade. Some of the faces pictured here can still be seen around Maury. Others are now a part of sixty years of memories.

A look at photographs from the past reminds us that many years have passed. A second glance reveals that love, the need for satisfying work, the lure of the aesthetic, and the desire of a good meal are still the motivating forces of faculty and student alike.

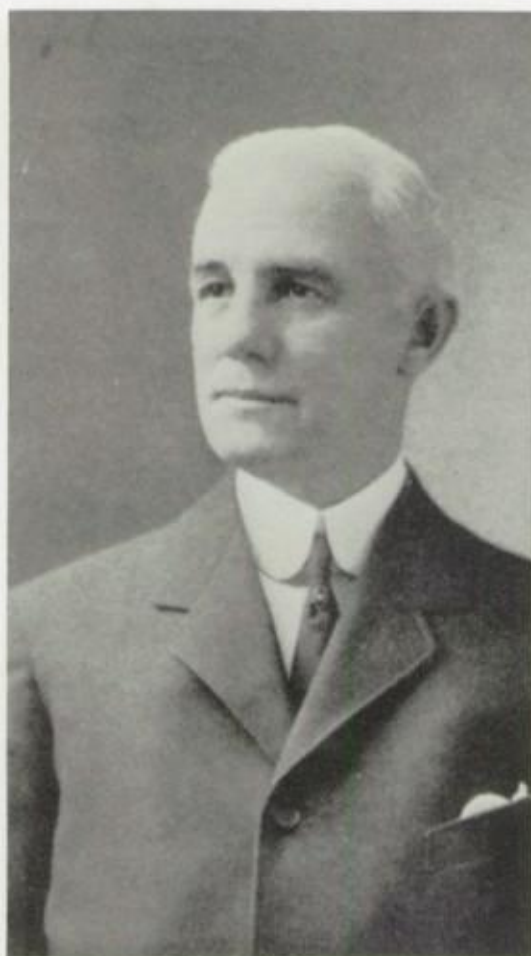

FACULTY AND ADMINISTRATION

Good Principals Are Traditional At Maury

In this, her sixtieth anniversary edition, Maury is proud to recognize her five former principals. The first, Mr. George McKendree Bain, a former Latin teacher, made his debut in 1849 as principal, presiding over a faculty of four teachers. Succeeding Mr. Bain, was Professor Mallory K. Cannon. The next principal, Mr. Arthur Bristow, former Division Superintendent of Schools, in Sussex and Prince George Counties, presided over Maury from 1920 to 1950. Maury's fourth principal, Mr. James E. Old, was a camera enthusiast. Dr. A. Rufus Tonelson, Maury's fifth principal, still exercises his administrative powers. He is the present Dean of Education at Old Dominion University. These men were the guiding influences in Maury's long history of greatness, and each man's name conjures up warm memories of happy years for Maury graduates everywhere.

Maury's present administrators exhibit all of the fine qualities of their predecessors. Mr. Robert Steckroth, principal, and his assistants form a very effective team. Their dedication to their jobs and their involvement in all aspects of the school program are attributes which make them outstanding among administrators.

The background of these four men is a diversity which touches upon every area imaginable in school life. Here we find experience in classroom teaching, coaching, Naval administration, and student activities.

Faculty Is . . .

Faculty is many things to many people. Faculty is trying to "relate" when you're over thirty or trying to get a little respect when you're under thirty. Faculty is finally getting your dream dress out of lay-away only to find the kid in the front row wearing the same outfit. Faculty is losing your temper and yelling at a student because it's been a hard week and sixth bell class is unusually loud. Faculty is lying awake nights thinking up ways to reach the quiet one in the back. Faculty is never getting caught up. Faculty is arriving early and staying late. Faculty is meeting. Faculty is liking kids. Faculty is hating kids. Faculty is caring. Faculty is listening. Faculty is believing. Faculty is filling out a questionnaire. Faculty is hall duty. Faculty is purposely getting off the subject in English. And faculty is giving a good performance when the department head visits.

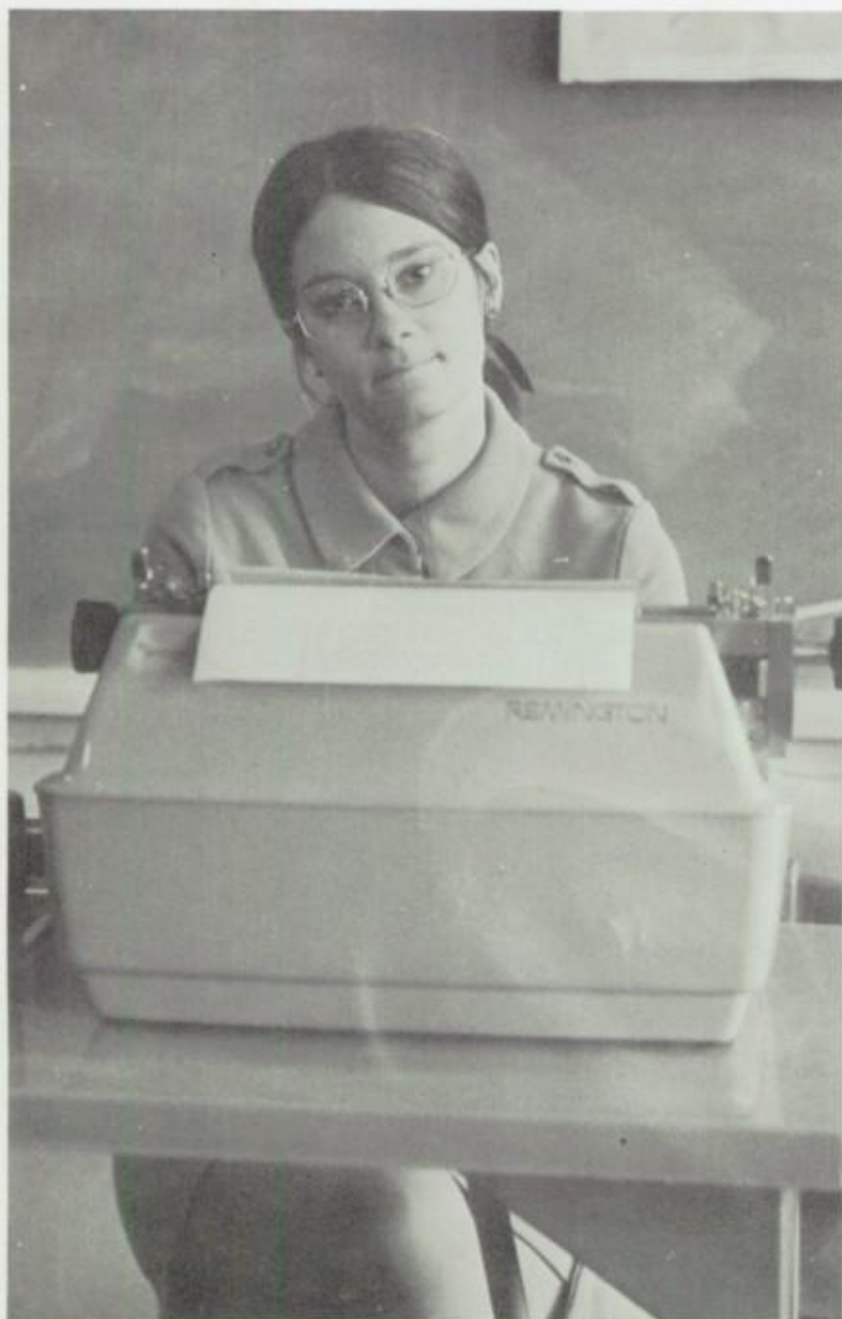

Help! Where's the bicarbonate?

Miss Morehead, one member of this lovely trio, still graces one of the offices at Maury.

Mrs. Ramsay, office manager, keeps things in shipshape order.

Mrs. Nicholson wonders why even the sound of music doesn't seem to help some of her student typists.

Mrs. Yates is a very important cog in the wheel of progress at Maury where both attendance and grades are recorded by her and her machines.

Mr. Harris, the new band director, is right in tune with the Maury spirit.

Mrs. Craft retreats to the rear of study hall for a few minutes rest.

Faculty Is Listening.

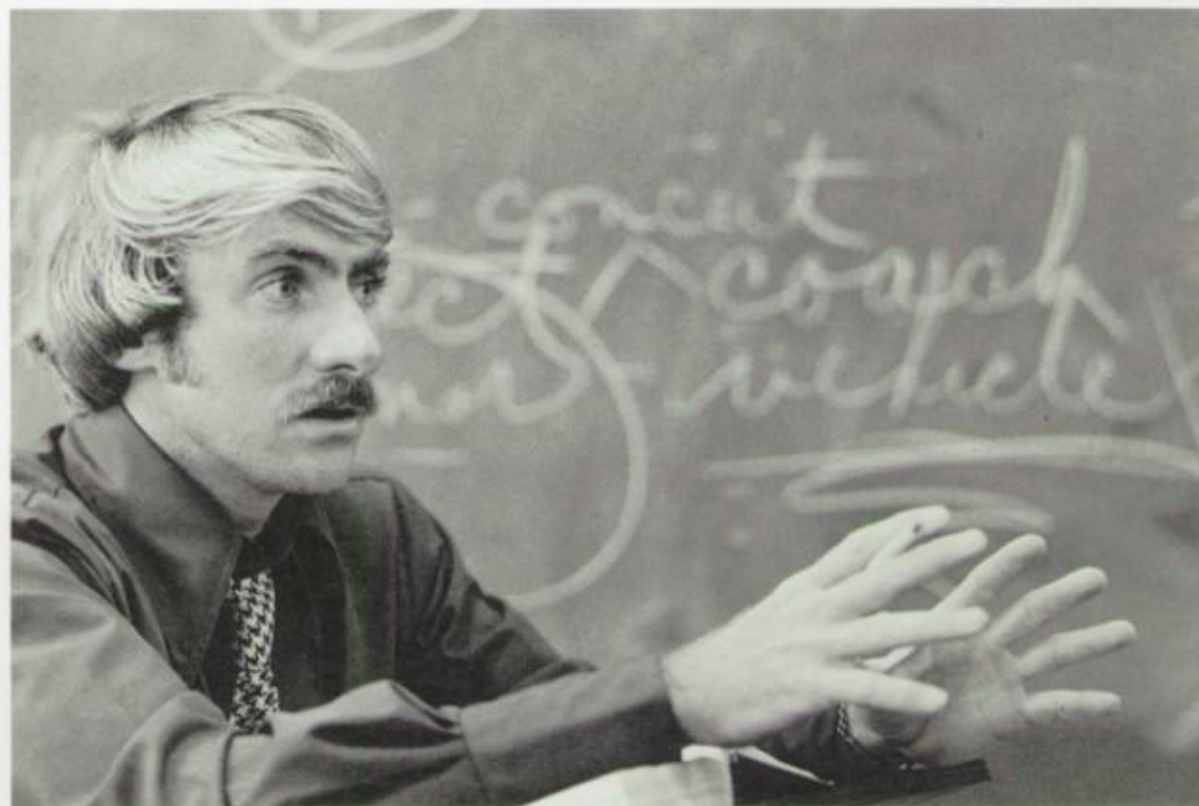

Faculty is frowning at the length of a boy's hair. Faculty is sending a kid to the office and hating it. Faculty is sending a kid to the office and loving it. Faculty is not knowing how to run a projector. Faculty is trying your hardest and not getting anything back. Faculty is enjoying poverty. Faculty is saying "Absolutely no talking or gum chewing or nonsense in my class." Faculty is not going to teacher's conventions. Faculty is thinking there's always room for improvement.

Mr. Glaser pauses on the steps to pick up debris.

Mrs. Jonas uses her study hall period to correct papers. Correcting papers consumes many hours for a teacher.

Mr. Bellis finds that his hands often help to make the point even when words fail.

Mrs. Ricks, Mr. Bacalis, Miss Martin gather in the conference room to discuss the intricacies of counseling.

Mr. Brown and Mr. Callow prove that there is still a place for a good laugh and a five cent cigar.

Mrs. Garnett, resident substitute, is the culprit who stuffs teachers' boxes with all kinds of goodies.

Faculty Is Fun

Mr. Gay examines the biology equipment.

Mrs. Lawson and Mrs. Wren find that paper work is never done.

Miss Ellis double checks to make certain that no one's name is omitted from the graduating list.

Mrs. Wood adds a little human interest to her social studies class.

Three former administrators exhibit the comradship which has always existed with the Maury faculty.

Maury's faculty has always blended its diverse personalities to create a pleasant and productive atmosphere. The smiles on the faces of Dr. Tonelson, Mr. Old, and Mr. Payne are indicative of the pleasure which the members of the Maury faculty find in working here.

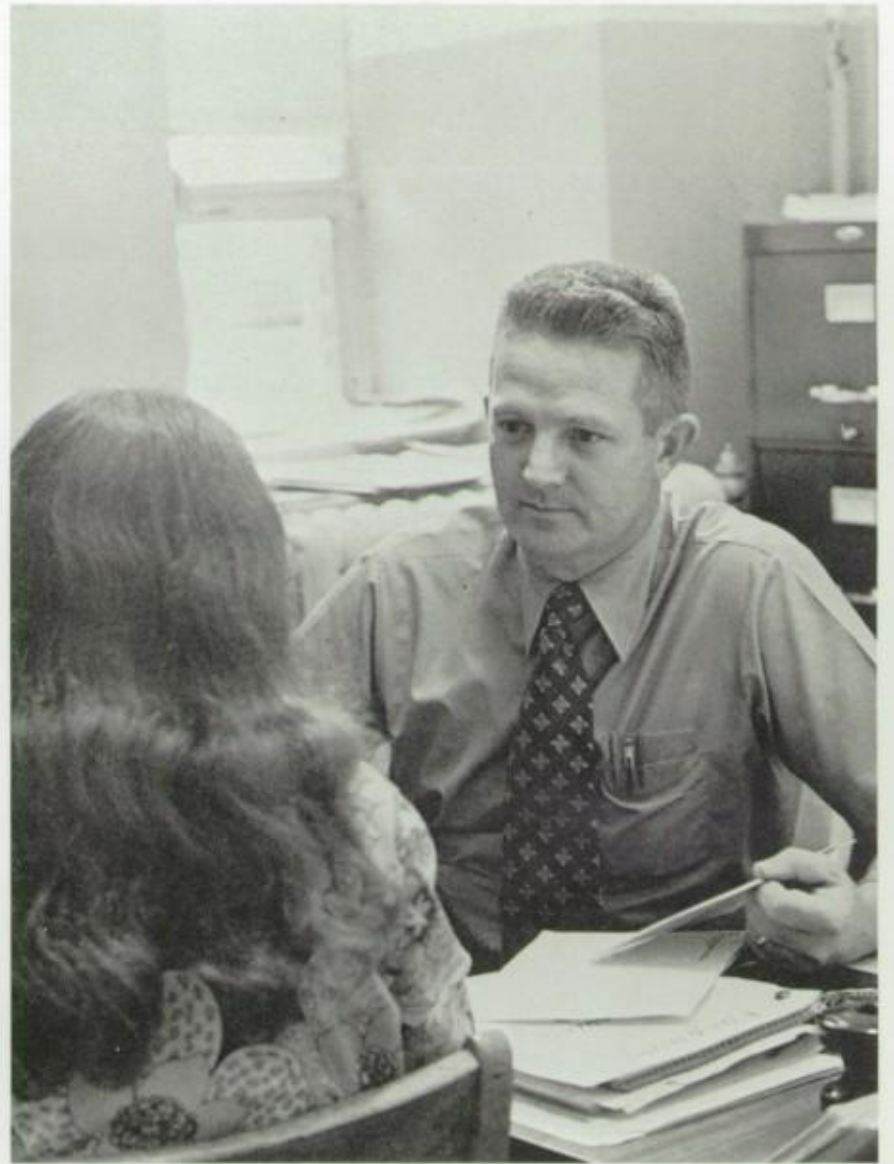

Mrs. Wood and Mr. Andreson, members of the present faculty are typical of teachers who take pride in their profession and a genuine interest in their school. To them, faculty is caring.

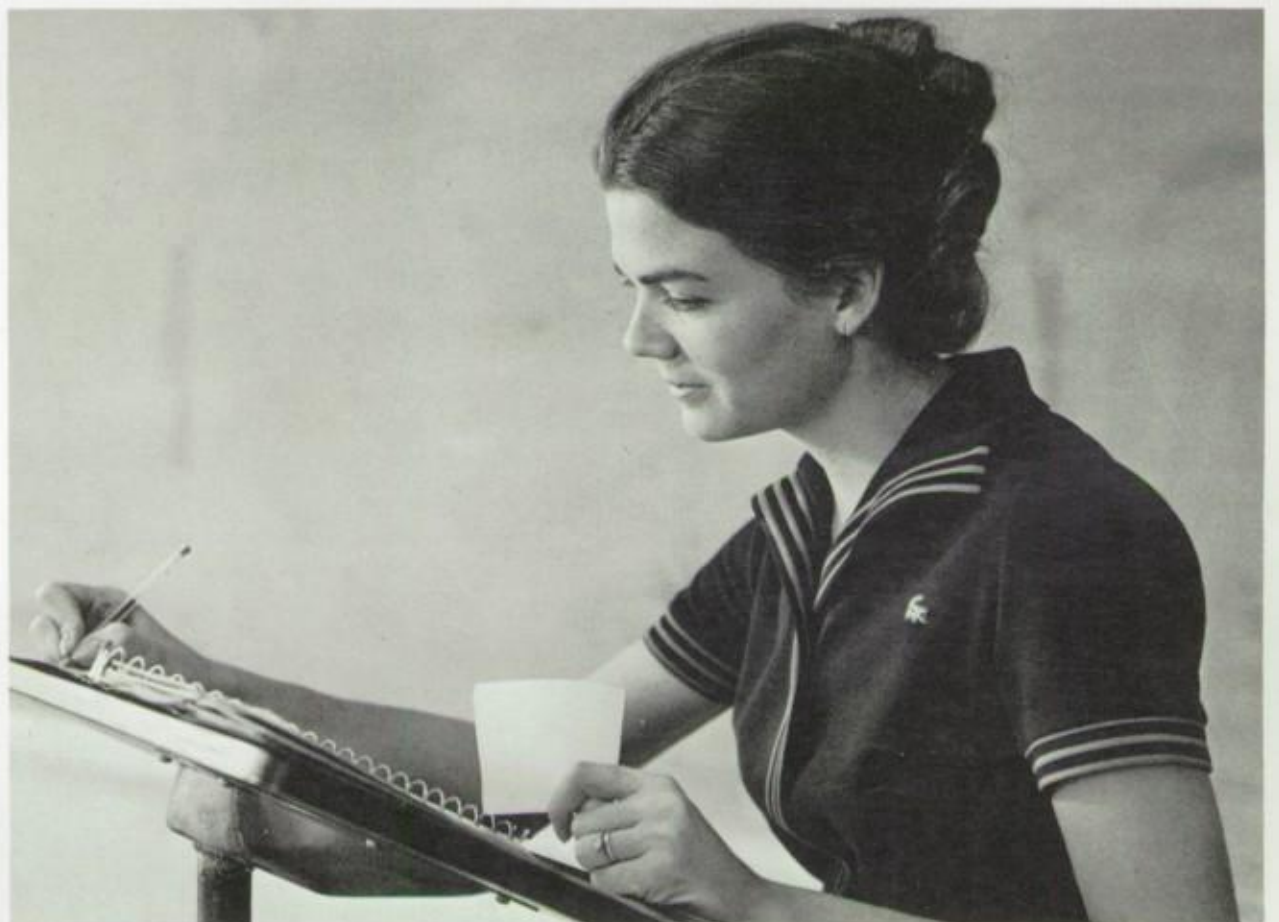

Mr. Andreson, teacher of English and social studies, combines a superior intellect with a keen wit.

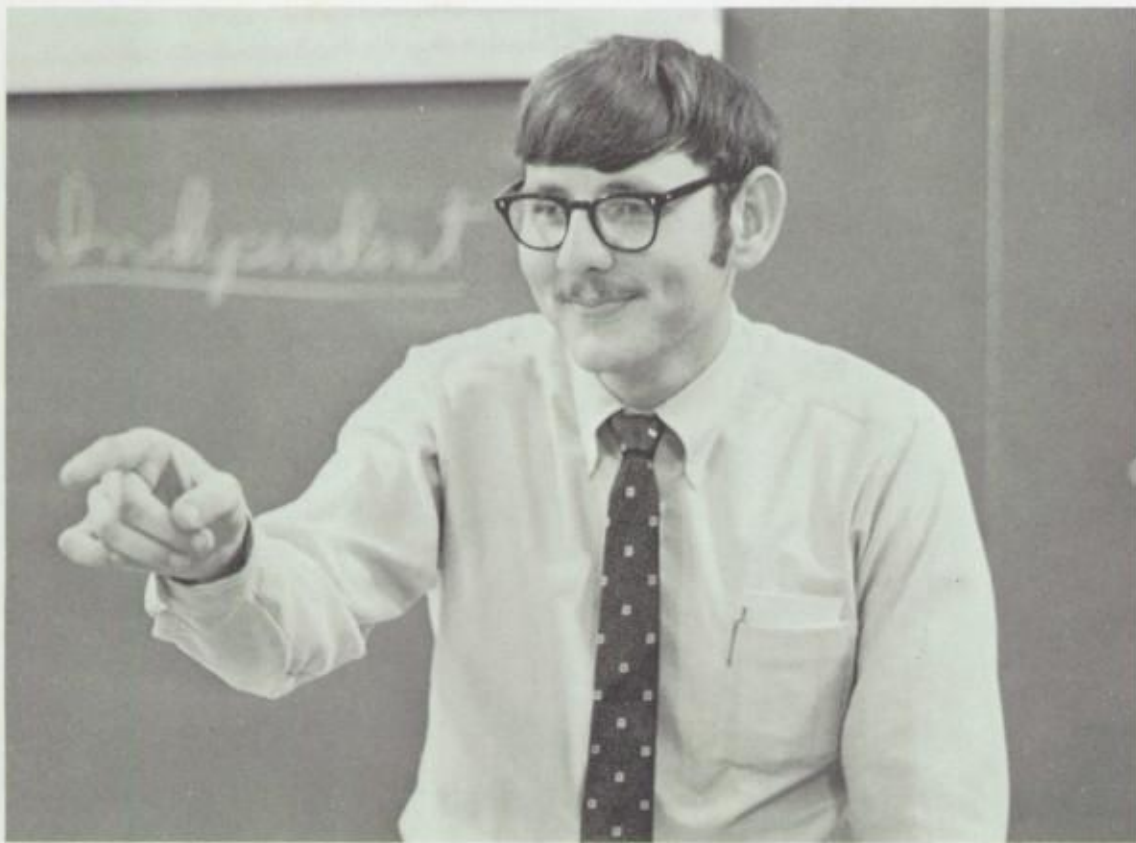

Mr. McCoy gives instructions to the teacher's aid.

Mr. Fulghum is never too busy to listen to students' problems.

Mrs. Brown records grades in that famous little book. Is that satisfaction on her face?

Mr. Cox points the "fickle finger of fate" at one of his failing students.

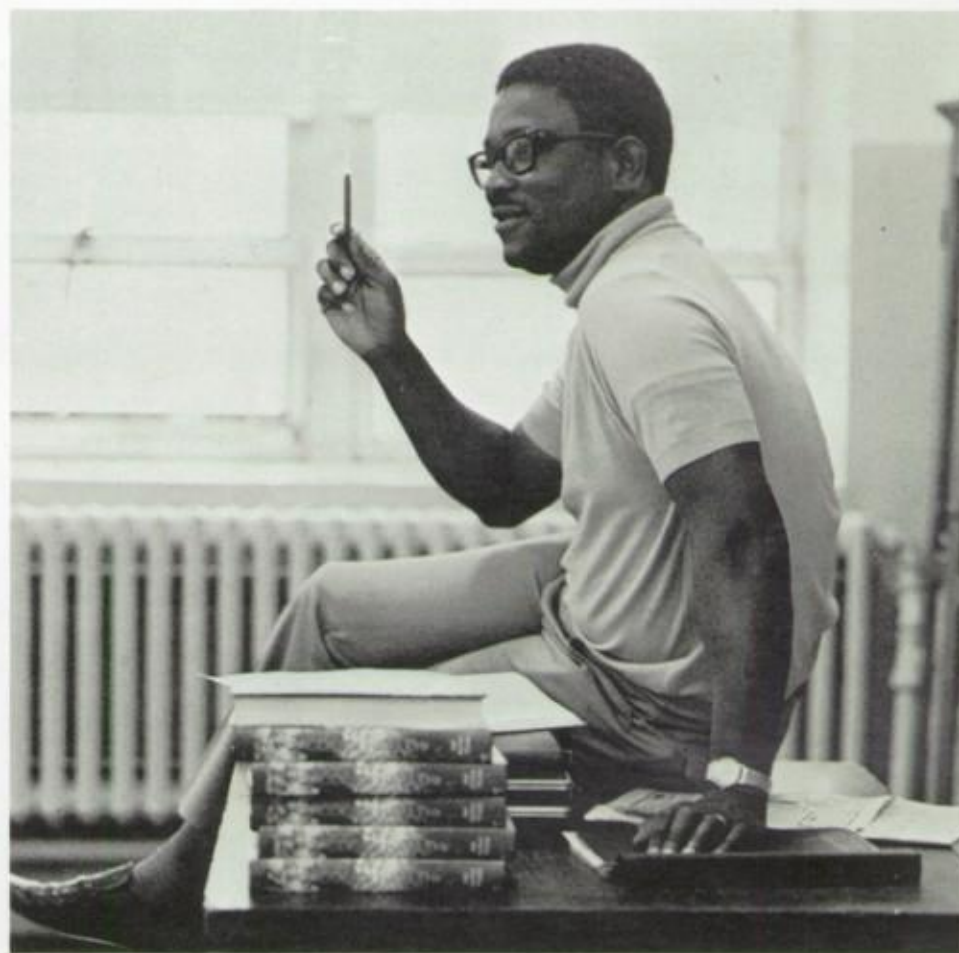

Mrs. Cheek displays some of the many materials available to students with reading problems.

Mr. Chauncey is pleased with the information in the student's records.

Mrs. Shields makes sure that the Commodore material is in on time.

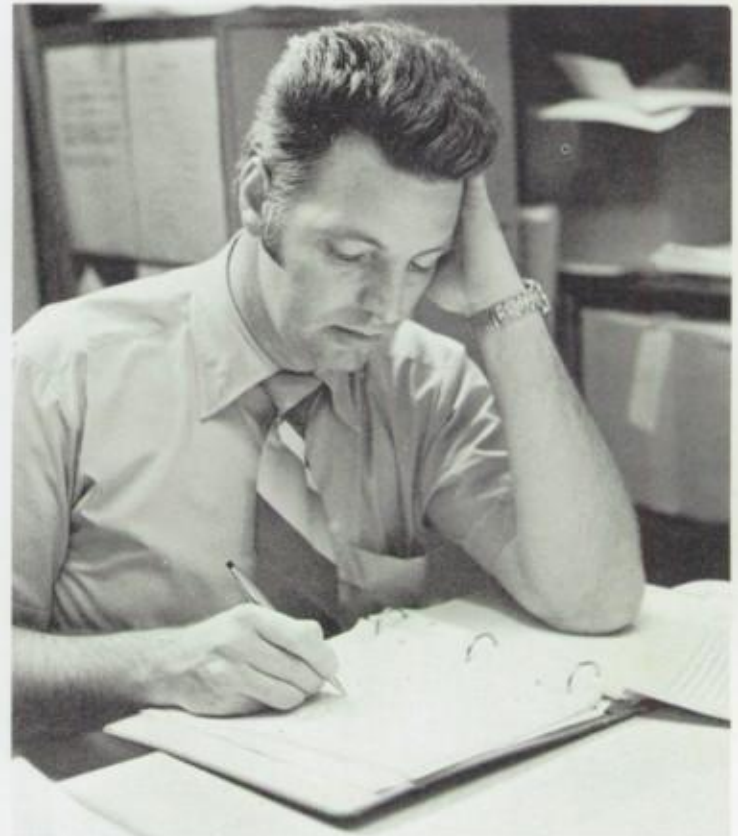

Coach Macklin pauses during the day to talk shop with the boys.

Does anyone here remember when Miss Lennon taught P.E.?

Mr. McCoy raps with students at lunchtime.

Mr. Harris ponders over the problem connected with the Special Ed students.

Mr. Callow's personality makes him a winner with the students.

Faculty Is Getting It All Together

Senior Class of 1972

"It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness . . ."

Charles Dickens

These famous words best sum up the feelings of many graduating seniors about Maury. The memories of the things they did will always be cherished. In their three years, there have been times of victory, both athletically and academically. In times of defeat, they have always bounced back with a renewed spirit to try a little harder.

This year marks the end of an era and the beginning of a millenium. Thus, the graduating seniors pass on the torch to the Commodores of the future.

"The old order changeth, yielding place to new . . ."

Alfred, Lord Tennyson

After sixty years, the Maury ring is still a symbol of great accomplishment.

Mrs. Johnson and her office aides greet visitors and latecomers with smiles.

Remember when hippie meant big in the hips,
And a trip involved
travel in cars, planes and ships?

When pot was a vessel for cooking things in,
And hooked was what grandmother's rugs may have been?

When fix was a verb that meant mend or repair,
And be-in meant merely existing somewhere?

When neat meant well-organized, tidy and clean,

And grass was a ground
cover, normally green?

When groovy meant furrowed with channels and hollows.

And birds were winged creatures, like robins and swallows?

When fuzz was a substance, real fluffy,
like lint,

And bread came from bakeries and not from the mint?

When roll meant a bun,
and rock was a stone.

And hang-up was something you did with the phone?

Memories Are Made of These

Seniors Salute Hip-Hip, Hurrah!

Students at Maury receive many services which they take for granted. The Senior Class pauses to salute the persons responsible for these services that help make life a little easier than without their assistance.

Mrs. Lawson handles the supply of books that students need.

Despite the many phone calls, Mrs. Baker always manages a smile.

Mr. Fulghum, head counselor, has helped many a student.

Cafeteria staff: Mrs. Jettie Hathaway — dietician, Mesdames Annie Boyette, Bernice Dailey, Fannie Davis, Dicie Emundson, Virginia Flythe, Betty Gilliam, Mary Heckstall, Pearlie Jacobs, Carrie Jones, Lula Little, Emma Little, Carolyn Manley, Anna Morrisette, Dorothy Reid, Haley Robinson, Mary Rogers, Lucille Saunders

Each year the cafeteria staff faces the problems of serving a growing student body, and it meets these demands with increasing efficiency.

Mrs. Morrisette keeps the teachers healthy.

After a busy fifth bell of office work, Lee Watts and Peggy Porter express a sigh of relief.

Deborah Smith patches up Steve Newberg's scraped knee with tenderloving care.

Junior Class Is Bound For 1973

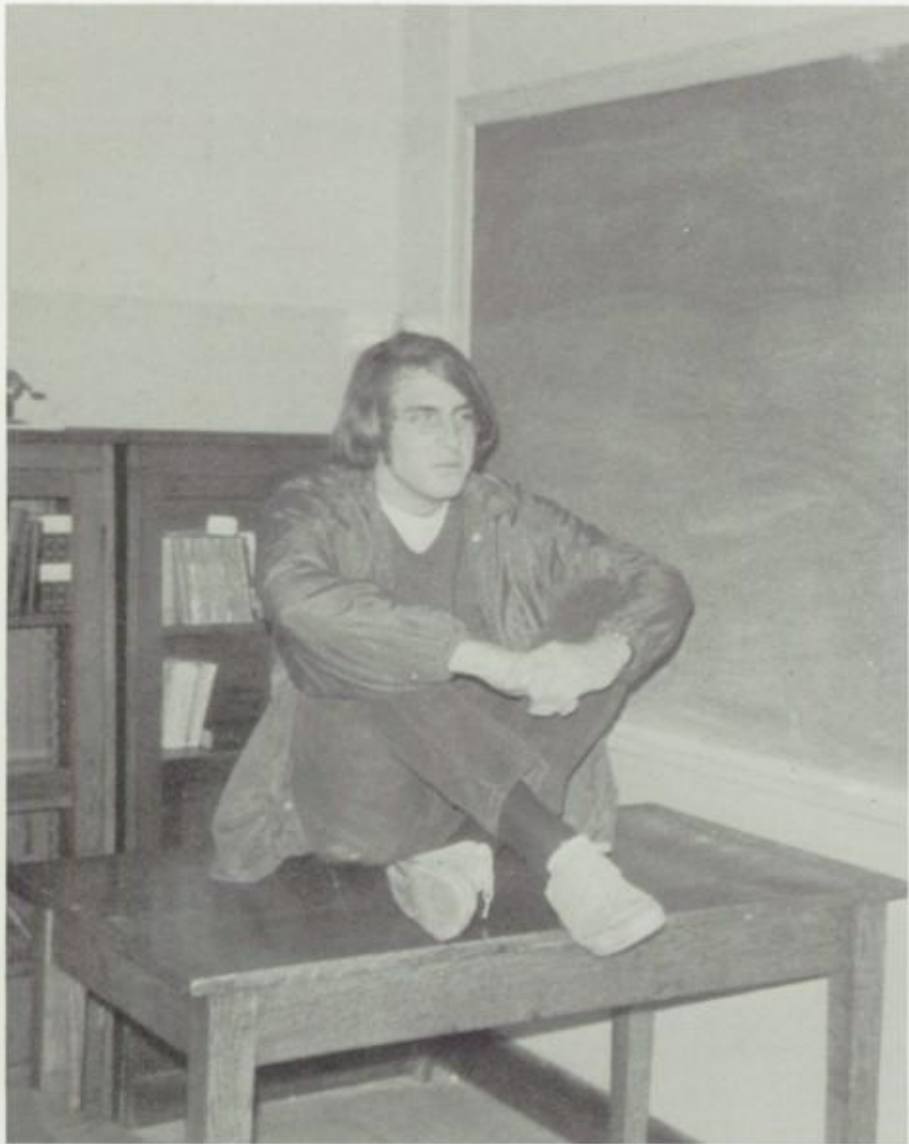

Tom Young, President; Mary Hill, Vice President; Daphne Pitt, Secretary; Frances Willis, Treasurer

Through the leadership of its officers and Homeroom representatives, the Class of '73 has engaged in various money raising projects for the prom. Other than collecting dues, the Junior class has also sold Maury pencils. One of the class's major accomplishments this year was talking with the Norfolk City Council, and having the parking rate at one lot near Scope lowered. The class of '73 is bound for success.

Mrs. Knox shares a joke with Sophomore Class Vice-President, Melody Quick; President, Cynthia Smith; Secretary, Jane Bell, and Treasurer, Cathy Stultz.

Despite the problems which the Sophomores have had in getting organized, they have coordinated themselves and worked hard on several projects. Some of them have included a food basket at Christmas for a needy family and a fund-raising project with several plans for the future. Although the sophomores were late in organizing, we feel that through the help of their officers and sponsor, Mrs. Knox, that the Class of '74 is on its way to become one of the greatest classes that Maury has seen.

The Sophomore Class Sponsor, Mrs. Knox, has helped the class immensely.

The Classroom Scene

Maury's diversified curriculum sends students to the school libraries and to the several branches of the city library in search of information to supplement their classroom instruction. The study hall also provides the opportunity for a bit of last minute cramming.

Some students see these facilities as extensions of the classrooms, while others see them as a change of scene or as good places to catch up on lost sleep.

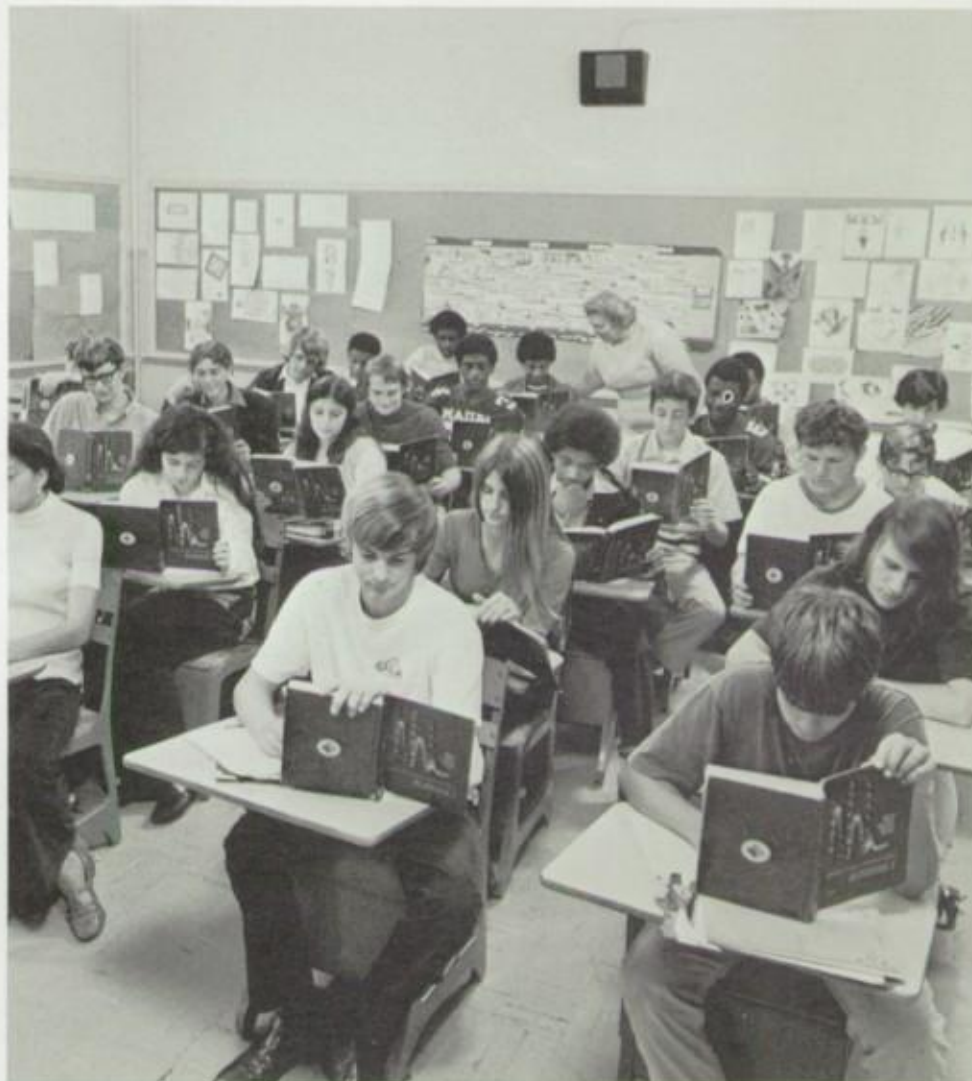

Sometimes Math and Math Teachers Are A Problem At Maury

Mr. Watson demonstrates the function of a slide rule.

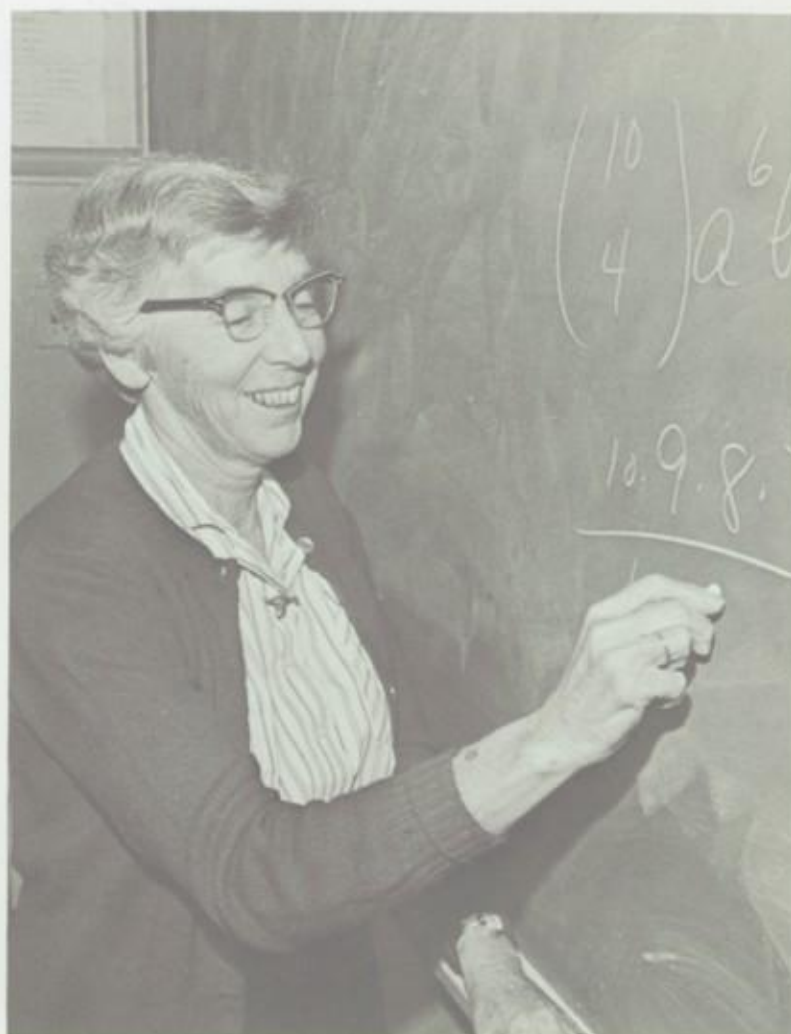

Mrs. Henderson and Susan Gray examine Math Office equipment.

Mrs. Deal helps a student with her math while others study in class.

Miss Winter's class discovers that Geometry is great for getting things into shape.

Miss Rush works an analysis problem for curious students.

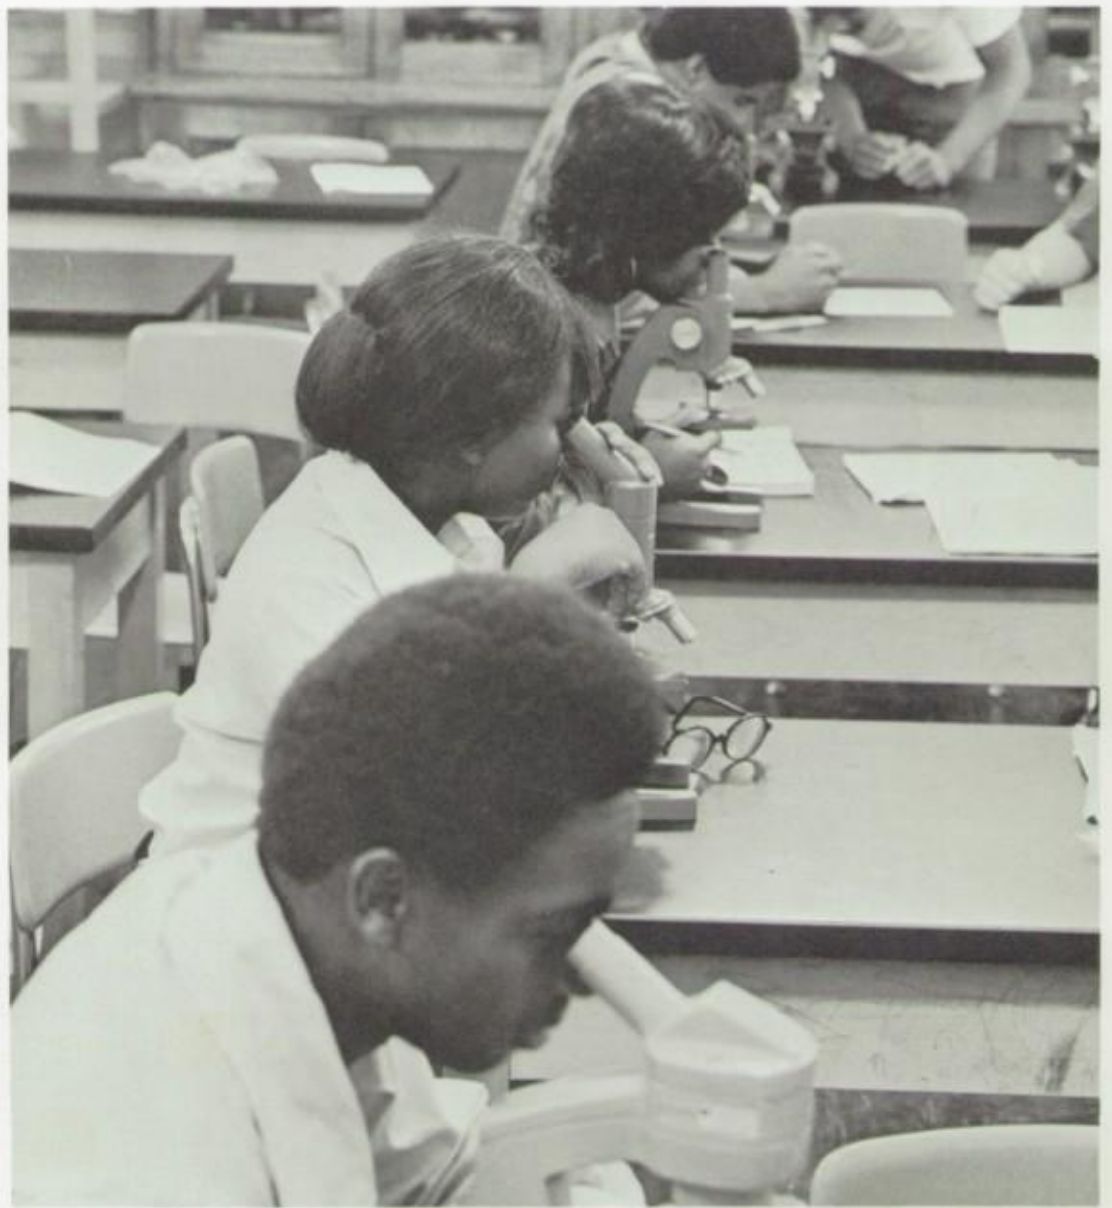

Mrs. Alfred answers a student's query about a problem.

Mr. Brown points out procedures for working math problems.

Science Reveals Many Wonders

Learning to use the microscope is the first step to unlocking the mysteries of nature.

Mr. Gay's Physics class discovers that it's not really love that makes the world go round.

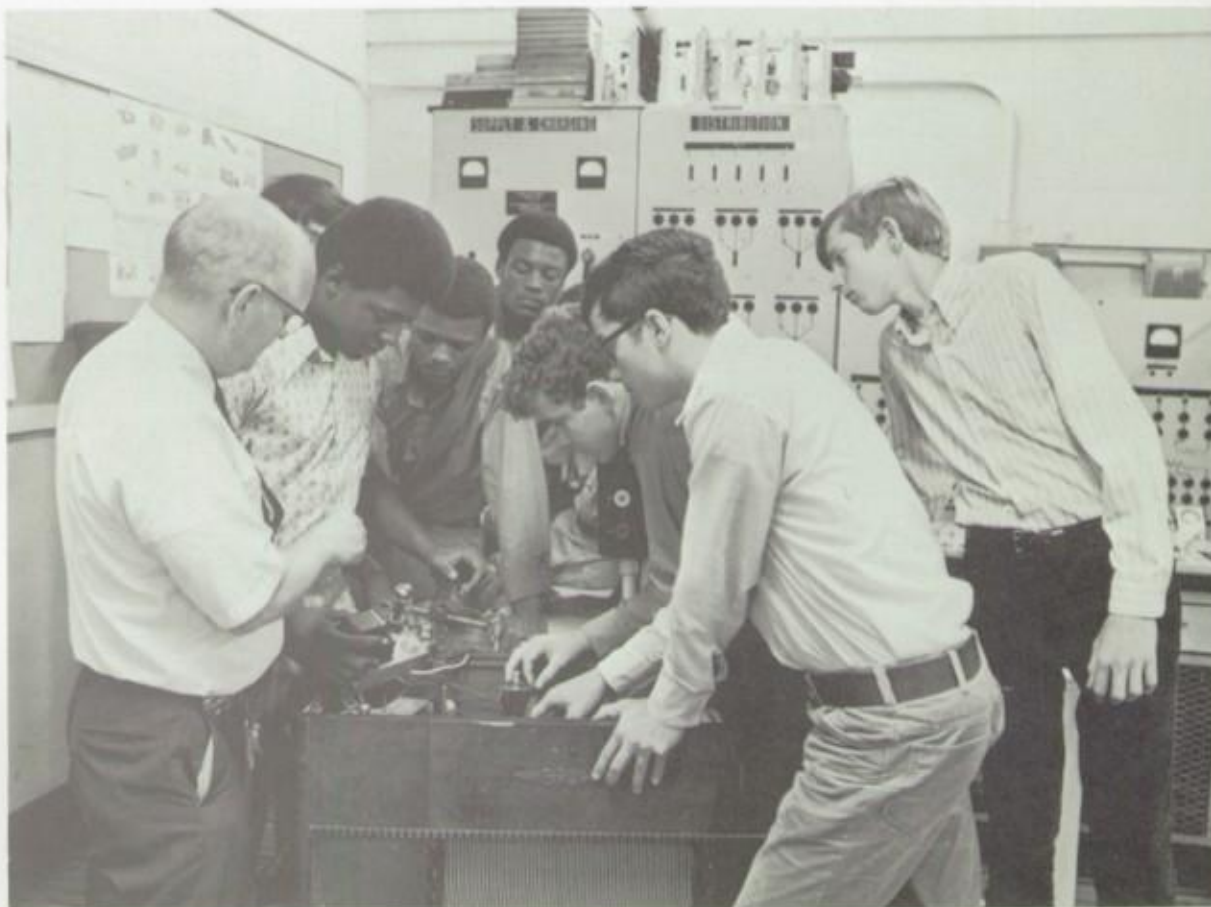

Visual aids lead Mr. Pirkle's Earth Science class to interesting discussions.

Mad scientist, Rip Montague tries another one of his experiments as Carolyn Wiggins and Brian Kattwinkel look on.

Maury's Vocational Program Is One OF The Best

A good knowledge of electricity is essential in Mr. Sparby's Electric shop.

Mr. Cheek emphasizes the importance of typesetting.

Wood shop has always been a favorite with Maury students.

Some students draw Mr. Bashara's attention more than others.

To be a good mechanical drawing student, you have to know all the angles.

Physical Fitness Is The Goal of The P.E. Department

Exercise is the name of the game for these students.

Hey diddle diddle see Sally fiddle!

Mrs. Jackson explains the importance of a good voice to her students.

Sandy Speros demonstrates her musical talent by playing the violin.

Music Hath Charms

English Teachers Make Learning Exciting

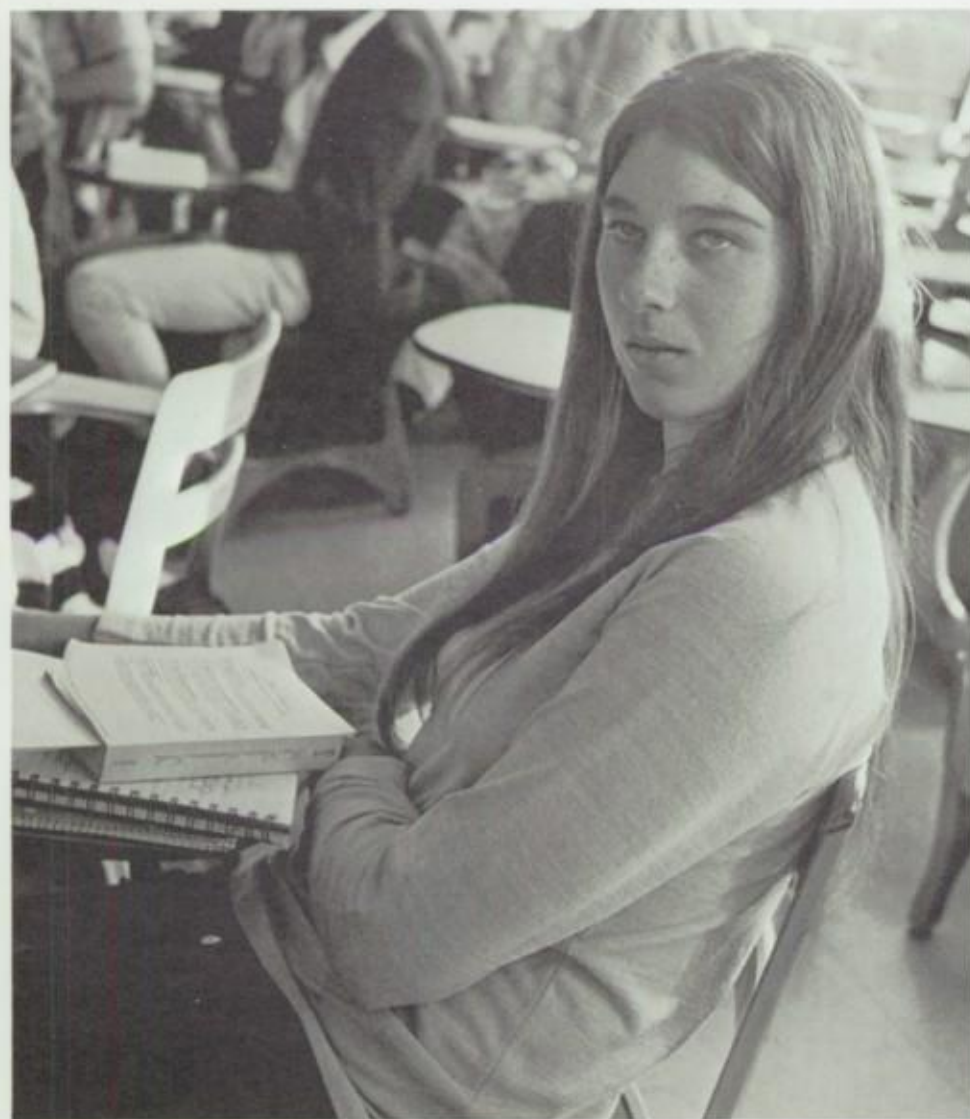

Mrs. Rorer finds that interaction is important to English instruction.

Students enjoy studying the Bible as literature. Here Daniel and the lion meet.

Mary Payne reflects on the ideas presented in American Studies class.

For Mrs. Harris's students, paperbacks are a real convenience.

Miss Winslow offers her assistance to a student.

Members of Mrs. Whitehead's Drama class anxiously await the end of the bell.

Who Needs Social Studies?

Students who see Mr. Brown's colorful wardrobe and longer hair today, may not recognize this picture from the past.

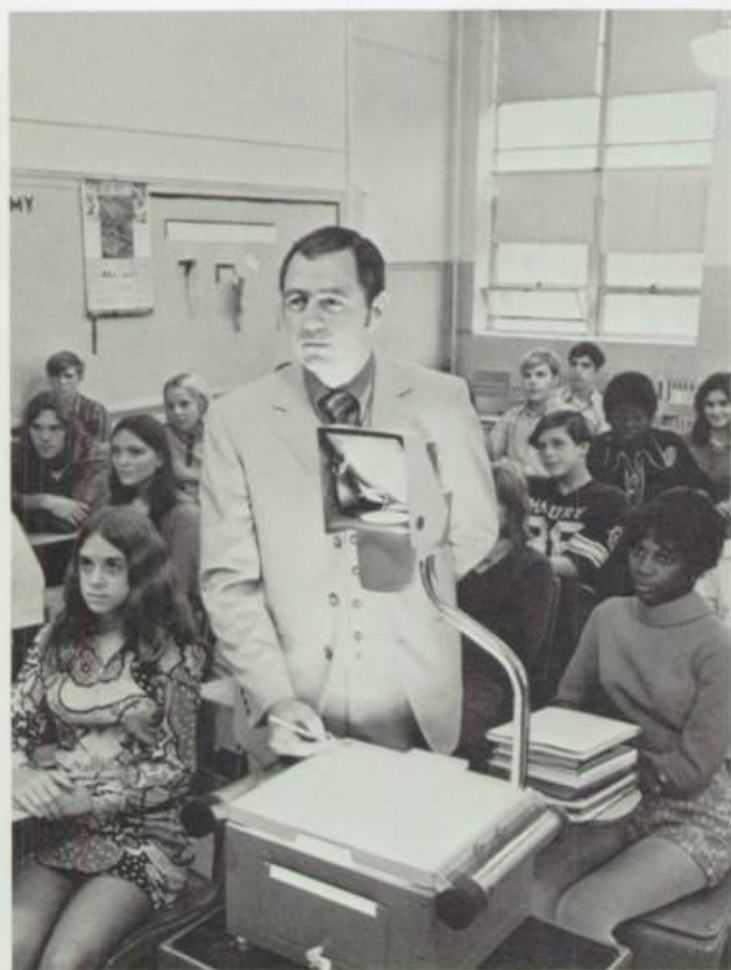

Mrs. Lennon pauses for a much needed break.

At the beginning of each year, thumbing through a government book is the first order of business for Seniors.

Foreign Languages Get Easier Through The Years

Listening to a language lab and reading over papers, Mr. McCoy proves that two things can be done at once.

In the language lab, students get to hear languages spoken.

Not only do Maury's students learn French, but they also show their school spirit.

Another Year . . . Another Yearbook

These staffers get a sneak preview.

Anyone got any ideas for this page?

Rip Montague comments on a lay-out plan.

Terry Hoffman salutes Commander Thompson.

The NJROTC Color Guards at Foreman Field

Larry Ferguson provides the marching beat for the corps.

Naval Science continues to be one of Maury's most popular courses. The familiar khakis and blues brighten up our day, and sports events take on added dimensions when the drill team appears. Commander Thompson and Chief Shealey deserve the thanks of all for being at the helm of a truly meritorious program.

No News Is Good News

The journalism class discovered that having a nose for news was not enough to get a newspaper in print. Although they have tremendous odds against them, they continue in their efforts to find ways of getting the news to the student body.

The Maury News Staff discusses all the news that's fit to print.

It takes a teacher, sponsor, and a policeman to censor the Maury News.

Maury's Art Class Is the Crown of Creation

Reed Burrell and Betsy Gainfort, demonstrate the use of the potter's wheel.

Round and round and round it goes, whatever it is no one knows!!!

Kathy Howard, Tommy Dozier, and Lana Nyman enjoy a few moments of leisure time in Art class.

Sadie Hood studies the artistic style of John Hodges and Cynthia Griffin.

Tony Walker, Thomas Worrell, Tony Biggs, and Russell Turner clean up while Mary Waite Faulconer continues to work.

Title III Goes Mod

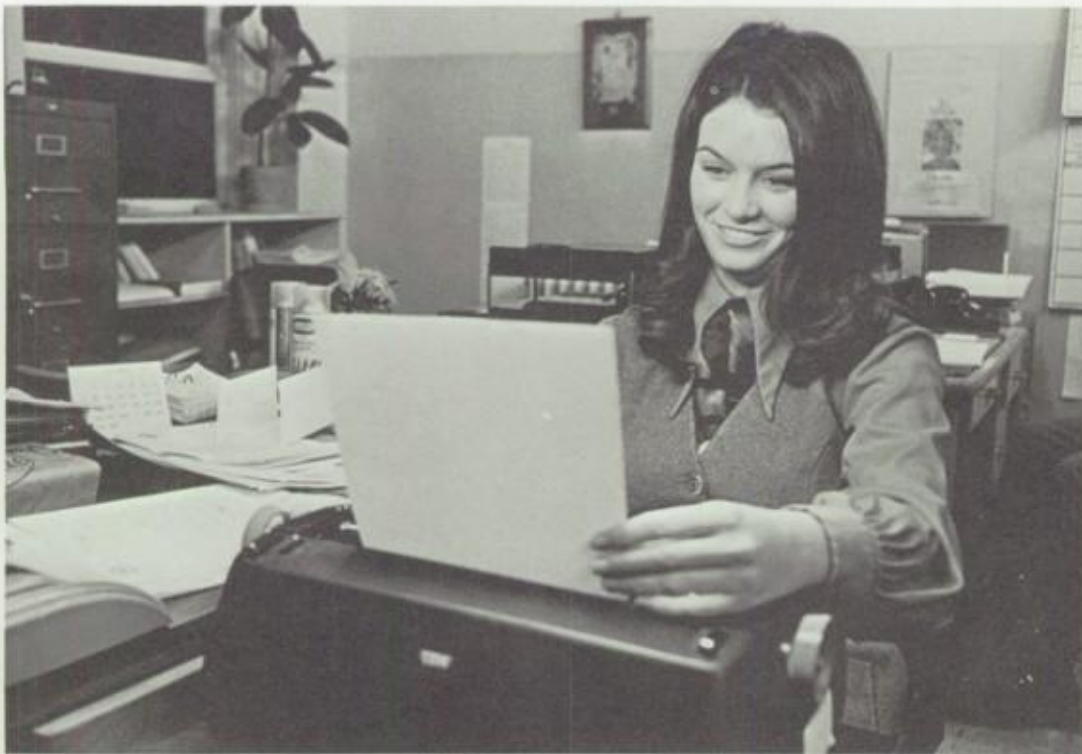

Harvey Barrett, Curriculum specialist, works on the Title III program design.

Revising the entire curriculum and developing a more relevant program of studies seemed formidable undertakings at first, but the Title III Staff put its expertise to work and found that even the impossible dream can be achieved. Mr. Edward Daughtery, program director, Mr. Allen Davis, computer analyst, Mr. Harvey Barrett, curriculum specialist, and Miss Sherri Alston, secretary, formed an unbeatable team. Before long the eyes of the entire city of Norfolk were focused upon Maury and its proposed program which would combine modular scheduling and phase electives.

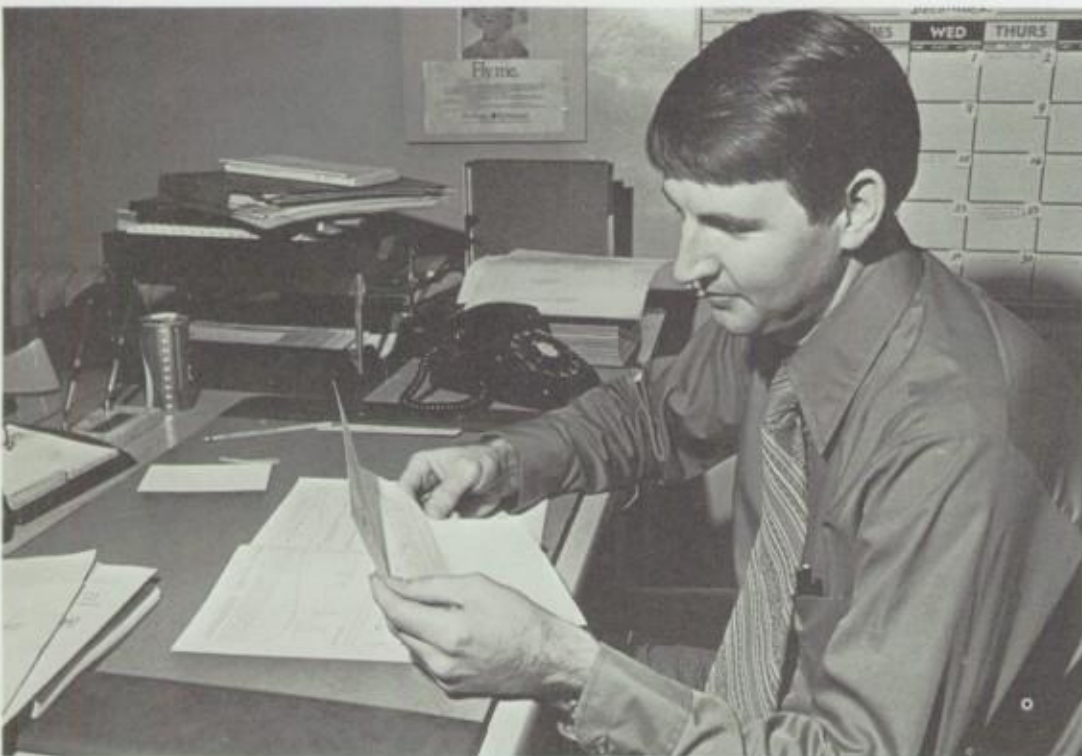

Mrs. Adassa Johnson, Educational Development Specialist, supervises the Content Reading Program from her desk in the Title III office.

Hours and hours of paper work occupies most of clerk, Sherri Alston's time.

Mr. Daughtery, Director of Title III program, reviews Mrs. Jonas's proposed new history courses.

Allen Davis, Computer Analysis, glances over a memorandum.

The Business Department Provides Good Training

Sometimes things just don't go the way we'd like them to.

Mr. Chrusceil checks Cynthia James' paper.

Miss Loughran and Mr. Chrusceil mean business.

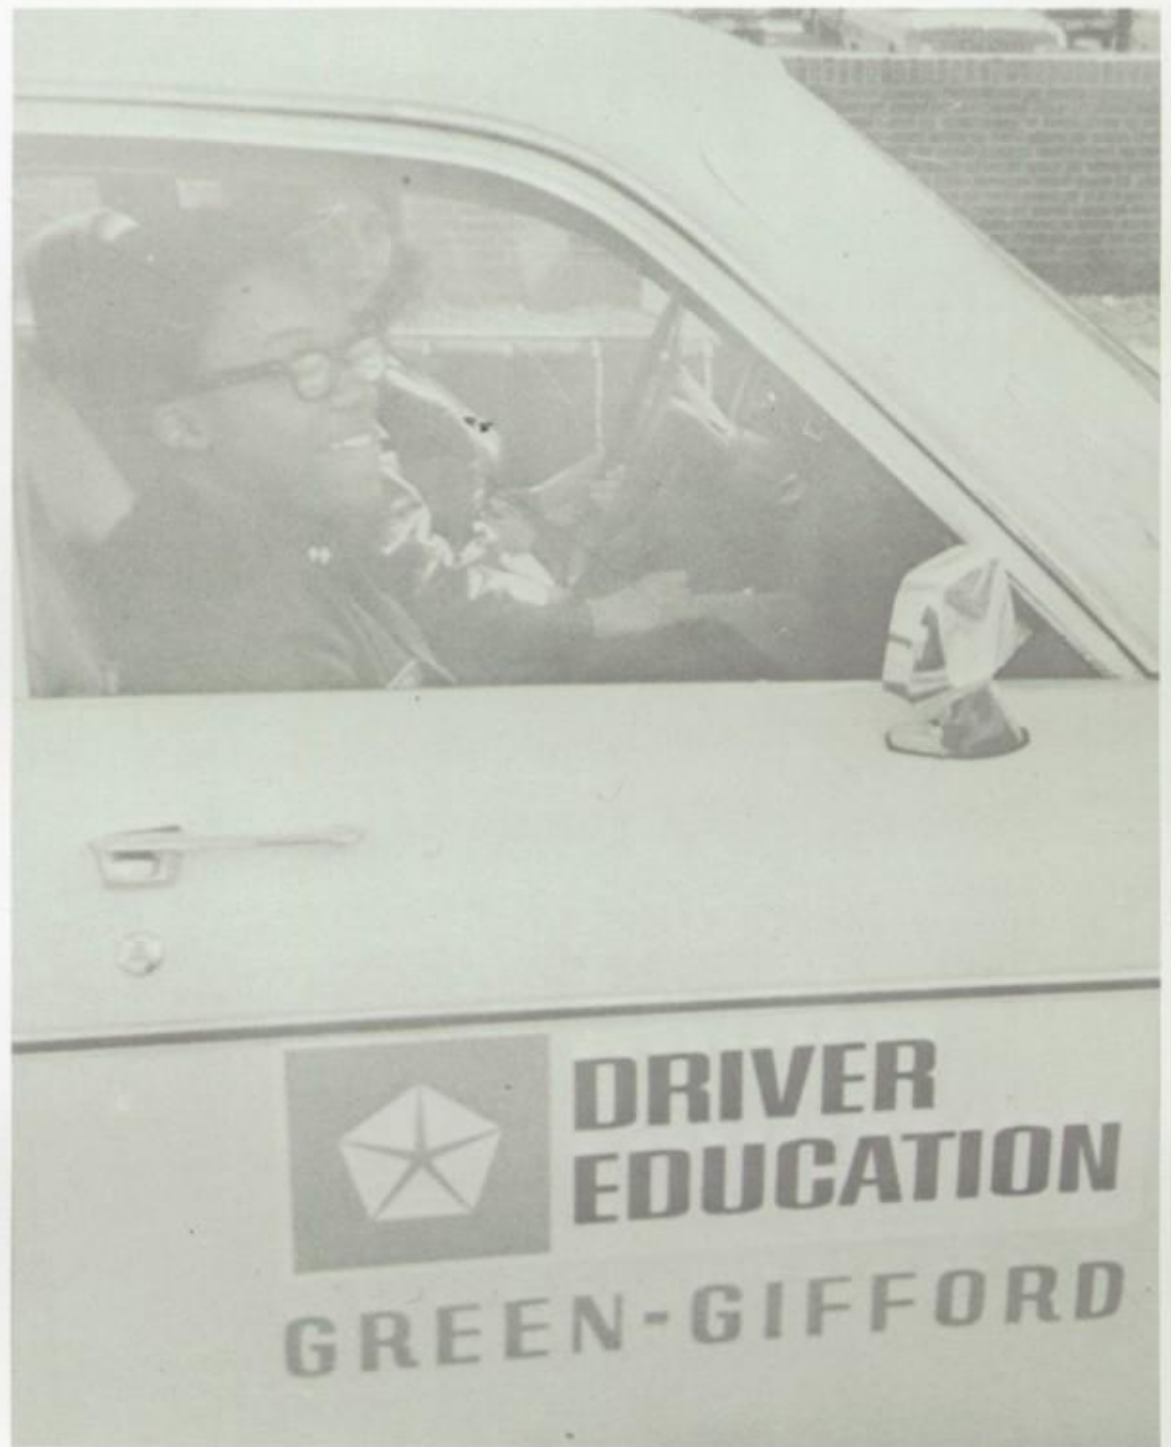

Mrs. Rambeau knows that reading the directions is essential to the success of any recipe.

There's Something For Everybody At Maury

The Maury Key Club Is On Top Again

Under the fine leadership of its president, Bill Martin, the Key Club continued to uphold the unparalleled spirit and tradition of Maury High School. The enthusiasm of the Key Club cheering section at athletic events remained unrivaled by any other group. At Thanksgiving, they gave an underprivileged family an abundance of canned goods and a turkey dinner. Continuing its quest to aid the less fortunate, the Key Club is presently sponsoring a child overseas. The club contributed their time, effort, and money to several other charities, among which are the Christmas Joy Fund and the Red Cross Christmas Blood Drive. Through their efforts towards human development, The Key Clubbers have "adopted" a group of youngsters from J.E.B. Stuart Elementary School. This "Buddy Program", plus the other community service projects, have provided the Maury High School Key Club a clear path toward achieving their 1971-1972 Key Club International objective, "Enriching Man's Existence".

La Société Honoraire de Francais

Les Savants: Françoise Cheek, Caroline McAlpine, Michèle Carlson,, Suzanne Krome, Mademoiselle Kellogg

The French Honor Society offers the student who is skilled in the French language an excellent opportunity to converse with other speakers of the language and to learn more about the culture of the French people. Away from the regimentation of the classroom, these scholars can study in depth those aspects of the French language, culture, and personality which appeals to them most.

Being able to read magazines in French is a real accomplishment.

Dance Group Performs At Scope

The Modern Dance Group, under the direction of Mrs. Delores Haywood, is, perhaps, one of Maury's most skilled and least publicized groups. The city's new multi-million dollar entertainment center, Scope, provided an elaborate and a most effective background against which these young ladies could display their talents. The many hours of hard work and the great degree of mental and physical art was readily apparent to every spectator who witnessed the magnificent performance of these experts of the dance.

At the halftime during the Bayside game, the Dance Group makes its debut.

Maury's Debate Team is a Winner!

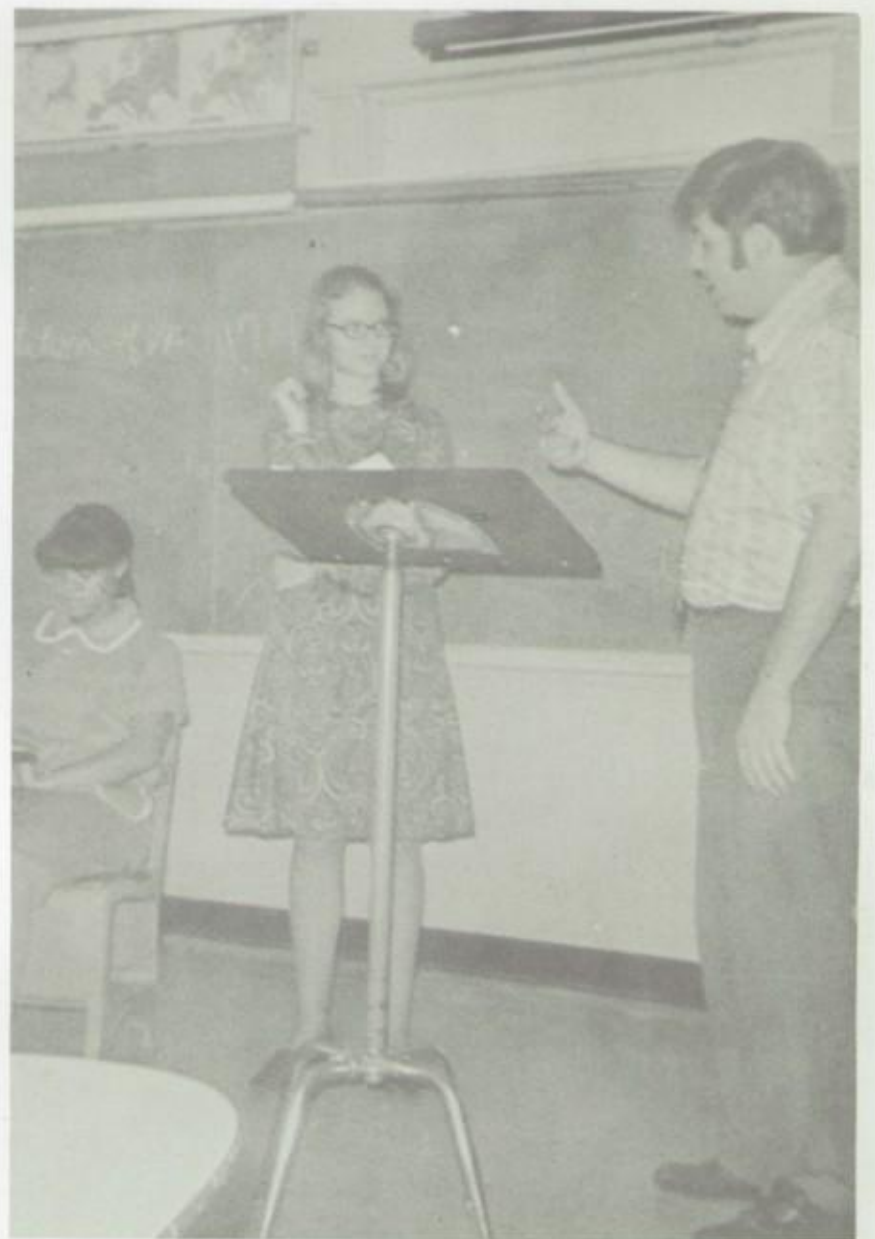

Maury's debate Team has come a long way since last year. Under the guidance of sponsor Michael Callow, the team has provided Maury with another plus in the field of interscholastic competition. Team members spend countless hours preparing for each contest by researching, filing and comparing information on the specified topic. Answers both pro and con are analyzed. Each member practices drills in presenting his position and rebuking his opponent's argument. Armed with a storehouse of facts and figures and the determination to win, our team stands ready to meet any challenger.

DECA is an organization which not only prepares its members for life, but makes the present more meaningful. Members of DECA can be seen throughout Tidewater at work in businesses of all kinds. Under the guidance of their expert coordinators, Mr. Costen and Mr. Glaser, these students learn that courtesy and skill play equal parts in service to the Ecos is a national organization with chapters in many universities and high schools throughout the country. Ecos strives to better inform the public about our serious ecological problems. Maury's chapter is no exception. This year the club has focused its attention towards the indiscriminate practice of harvesting trees. Sponsoring a paper drive to recycle paper waste at Maury, the club members hope to save if not a forest, a tree or two from the lumberman's saw.

In October, Maury received an invitation to attend the ninth North American Invitational Model United Nations at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C. on February 17-20. A group selected from the International Relations Government classes accepted the invitation and, as an outgrowth, formed a new club. The group, and its chaperone, Mrs. Margaret P. Jonas, became members of Interact, sponsored by the Norfolk Rotary Club. With a generous gift from the Rotarians, the delegation managed to make the trip to Washington for the convention. The delegation was divided; one part represented Rwanda, a small African nation, another represented Mauritius, an island nation in the Indian Ocean. Still another group participated in Inter-Nation Simulation, a "game" which involves the basic political and economic principles of government.

Working in the Drafting room makes designing layouts easier for the staff.

Deadlines, deadlines, deadlines, were constant incentives for the yearbook staff as they prepared the Commodore for publication. This year the yearbook staff has put forth untiring effort to produce the 1971-1972 Commodore. Extra after school hours, as late as six p.m., were filled with the planning and completion of pages. Even a Saturday, complete with a pizza supper, was used to meet a deadline. We hope we have shown the school year of 1971-1972 to the satisfaction of the entire student body.

Recipe for a Successful Homecoming

Take one tearful Queen, eight excited attendants and their escorts; mix well with several loud, spirited cheerleaders. Blend in the noise of an anxious crowd. Stir in the rhythmic cadence of the drill team along with the melody of the band. Sprinkle with plenty of Maury spirit; Garnish with a overwhelming football victory. Here you have the recipe for a successful homecoming. This recipe whould yield enough portions for at least one year if taken in small amounts.

Terry Daniels escorted by Bill Martin walks tensely across the field.

Senior attendant Marilyn Ocheltree and her escort Randy Ferguson.

Junior attendant Libby Sailor and her escort Tim Pope.

Senior attendant Gwen Myers and her escort Ventura Condra.

Junior attendant Cathy Peters and her escort Tom Young.

With the trap set by Curtis Tri-Hi-Y, Maury caught the Marlins.

The spicy float of the Keyettes helps add to the enthusiasm of the game.

"Garnett does it again. 1st Place!"

Curtis watches the crowd from a cool point of view!!

The cheerleaders are out for a spin around the field.

Here is one last look at Queen Cynthia James and her Homecoming Court of 1972. With Mr. Steckroth at her side, she walks proudly off the field amidst the joyous shouts of her many admirers. Surely the happiest man on the field is Michael Taylor, who is glad that Cynthia chose his shoulder to cry on.

Seniors leave with Eastern District Championship

Coach Jerry Sazio, this season as in seasons past, has produced a mighty Commodore football team. The Commodores' tough defense aided in winning the hardest games of our season — Princess Anne, First Colonial, and Lake Taylor — if the play off game with Wilson is excluded. Of course, Maury was hindered with several mid-season injuries to its starters. Says Coach Sazio, "I think they all did an outstanding job and lived up to expectations." The starting seniors are no doubt the prominent players. No one or two players can be singled out because as the coach commented, "it was all a team effort" — with an emphasis on the word 'team'.

The 1971 season will have a stronger backfield, says Sazio, and the Commodores major problem will be rebuilding the line. Of course, with good returners, this will cause little trouble.

Maury Cheerleaders Prove To Be "Best Of All The Rest"

Good cheerleaders have long been a Maury tradition, and this year's squad is no exception. Sporting new winter uniforms and adding livelier cheers to their repertoire, the Maury Varsity Cheerleaders have really outdone themselves. With more cheerleaders than ever before, the girls were able to cover every sports event less strenuously and more efficiently. While one group rallied behind our runners at a cross-country race, the other two groups respectively focused their attention on a wrestling match and a swimming meet. Come evening, the girls regrouped and converged on a Maury basketball game. Obviously, our cheerleaders are kept very busy both home and away.

After being upset last year in District Tournament, Maury heeled and came back strong. Eight lettermen returned and played good ball. No team in the Eastern District measured up to Maury's alertness and fast pace during the season.

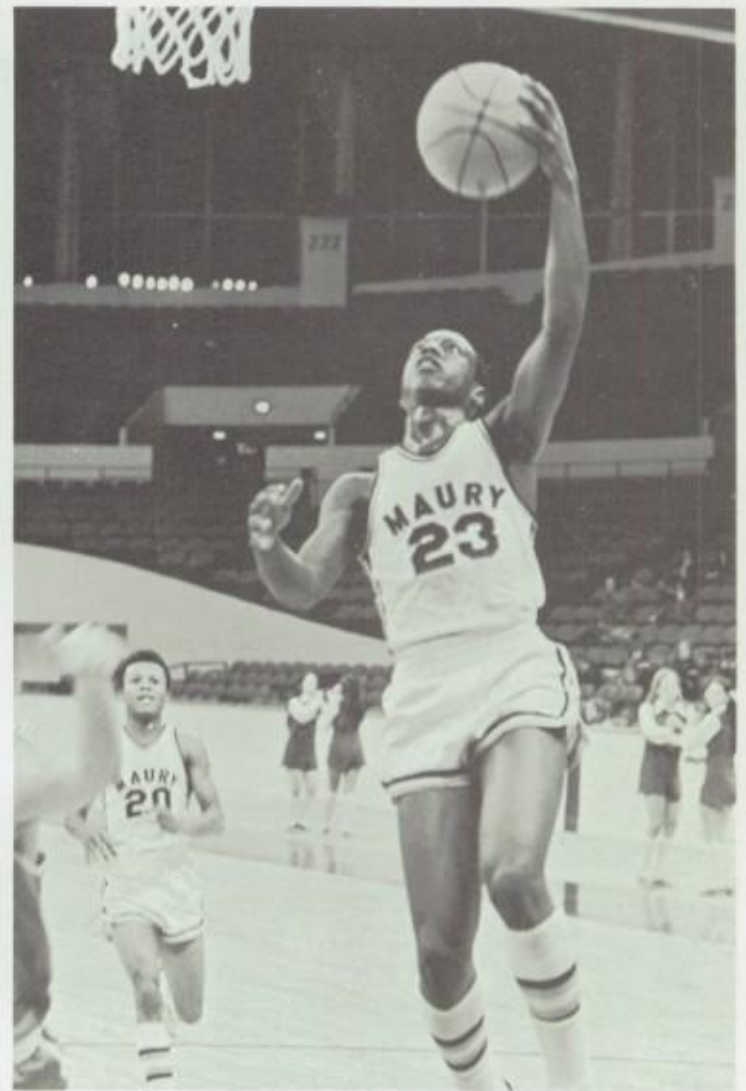

Maury had trouble with B.T. Washington and was losing at the half 33-22. They held B.T. Washington to only two points in the third quarter. With the fine shooting of Larry Bellamy and Victor Jones, the team came back and led 42-35 at the end of the third quarter. When the buzzer rang, Maury was victorious 68-47. This game was just one example of Maury's ability to snap back and win.

Here's Why We're Number 1

Teddy Bacalis's formal association with basketball began at Maury High School where he played as a student. He was team captain both here at Maury and later at V.P.I. He began coaching at Maury in 1958. He has produced five All-State players, numerous metro, region, and district players. Coach Bacalis has never had a losing season and his most enviable record is one which most coaches only dream during their career.

The Class of '72 feels honored to pay tribute to the sixty classes which have produced a mayor, a police chief, a school board chairman, numerous local, state, and national government officials and many other fine citizens of which Norfolk and Maury can be proud.

The staff was able to make contacts with only a small segment of alumni, but the response from those contacted was overwhelming. We have attempted to merge sixty years at Maury through words and pictures and perhaps evoke fond memories for some to whom the past may have become dim.

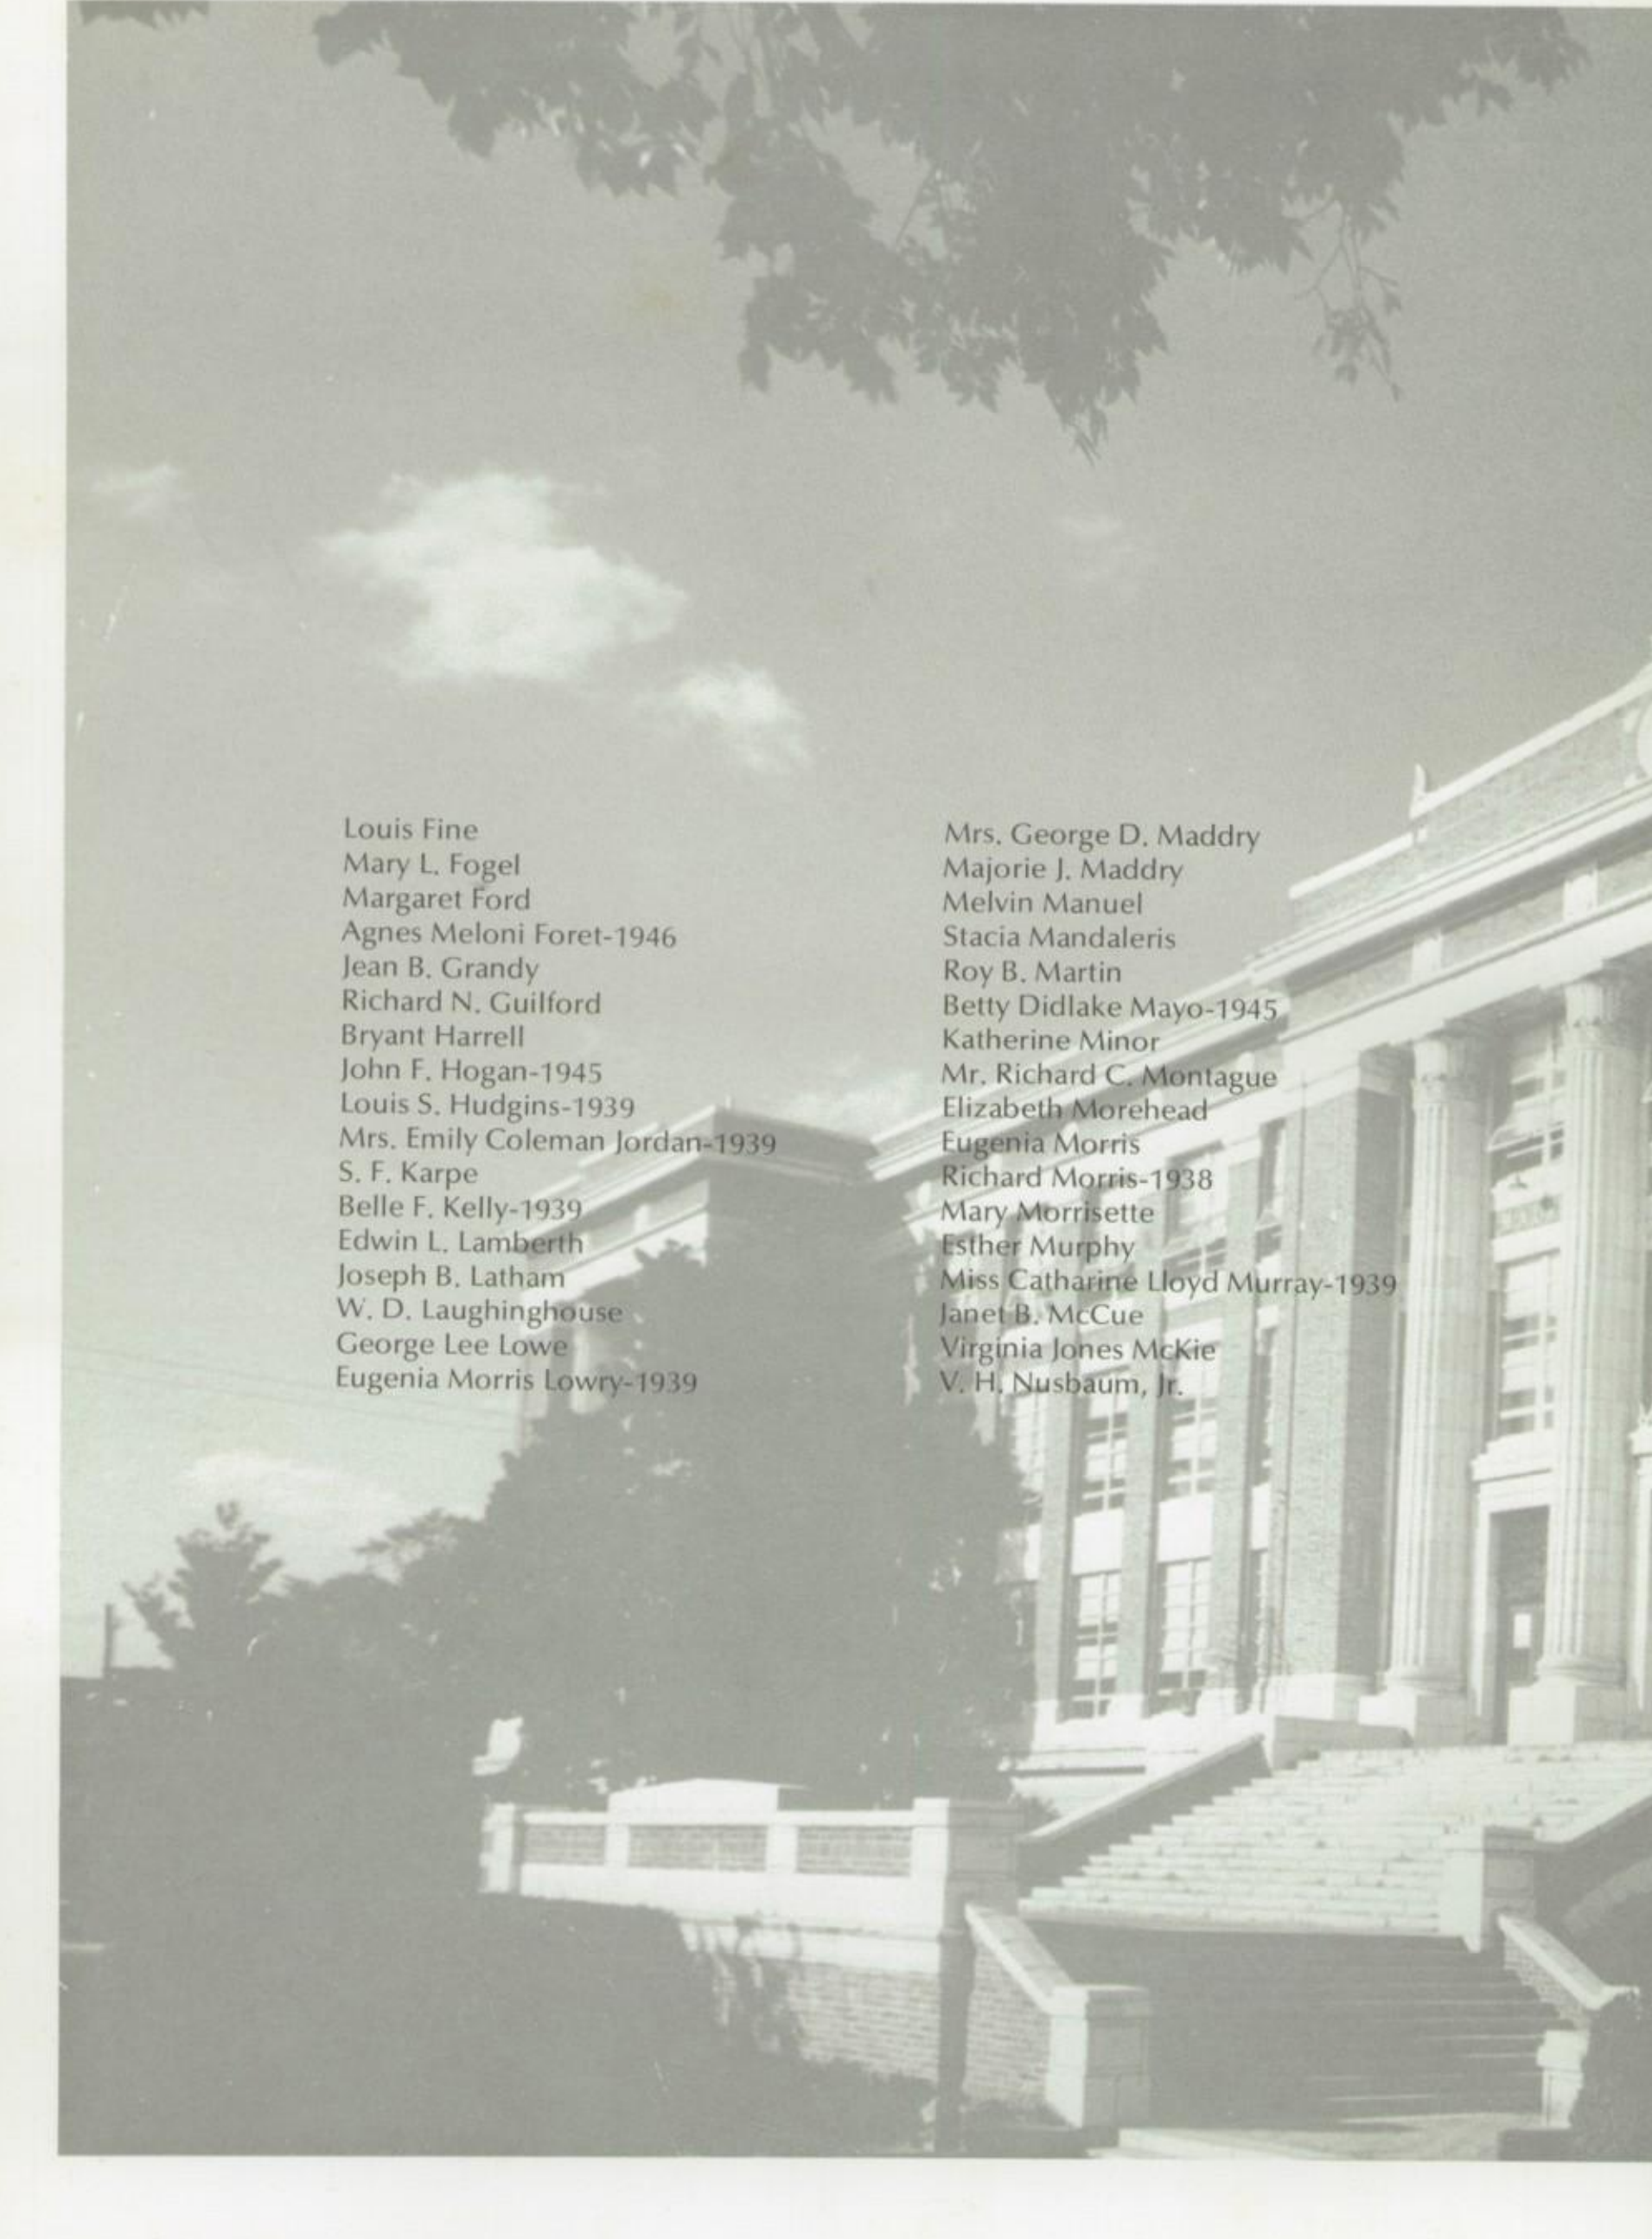

Alumni Remain Loyal

One of the highlights of the year for the staff was receiving and reading letters from alumni. Letters were received from as near as just around the corner and as far as Istanbul. Our letters even elicited responses from members of the class of 1911, Maury's first class. Throughout all of the letters there ran a thread of loyalty and pride which is still one of the characteristics of a Commodore.
